MADDEN DEATH SERIOUS LOSS FOR ECONOMY

Chairman of Appropriation Committee Practiced as Well as Preached Subject

WATCHDOG OF TREASURY

Proud at Closeness of Which Congress Followed Budget Recommendations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1928, Post Pub. Co.)

Washington— (AP)—Economy, which has been the characteristic of the present administration, lost its chief exponent in congress in the death of Martin B. Madden, chairman of the appropriations committee of the house of representatives.

Many other men in public life have preached economy but Martin Madden practiced it in every legislative proposal that came before him. Known for years as the "watch-dog of the treasury," he permitted no friend nor foe to influence his judgment as to how the government's money should be spent. He neither carried prejudices against political opponents nor did he allow political friends to sway his judgment.

When the budget system came into operation there were those who predicted an unsympathetic attitude on the part of the members of congress who had previously wielded real power in appropriations. Mr. Madden gave the budget system his whole-hearted co-operation and used to emphasize with pride to the correspondent and others how closely congress had followed the recommendations of the budget bureau.

When Comptroller General McCarl began to be criticized for his decisions with reference to government expenditures in the executive departments and brought down on himself all sorts of denunciation, it was Martin Madden who upheld him and insisted that the comptroller general, was carrying out the true wishes of congress in exercising a close check on the spending of government funds.

POPULAR WITH COLLEAGUES.

Popular with his colleagues of both parties, an indefatigable worker, Mr. Madden was one of the outstanding leaders of congress. His word carried weight in both houses. He was always a staunch republican but took the liberty of differing with the executive branch of the government whenever he thought it wrong.

Yet while Martin Madden was one of the most useful members of congress in the present generation, he had his difficulties being reelected. Time and again he was worried about his political future. His district is heavily populated by negroes and every now and then he was opposed by a negro for the republican nomination in the primaries. Once nominated, however, he was always sure of election. M. Madden was not merely a negative figure in the sense that he stopped extravagance. He offered many constructive pieces of legislation. Two of the proposals dear to his heart have not been adopted but he worked hard for them in his closing years. One was for the leasing of Muscle Shoals to the American Cyanamid Company and the other was his plan for an automatic reduction of taxes wherever the surplus in any fiscal year exceeded fifty million dollars.

Modest to the extreme, the little paragraph in the congressional directory where extensive biographies usually are printed, tells how self-effacing was Martin Madden. His biography was always just a single sentence: "Martin B. Madden, republican, of Chicago, was elected to the 59th and each succeeding congress."

And that was all he cared to say about himself. Today the nation mourns him and the whole government on Sunday participates in a state funeral in his honor.

ACCUSE INJURED MAN OF STEALING MACHINE

Manitowoc —(AP)—One man was injured in an accident Sunday when an automobile reported to the police to have been stolen tipped over south of this city. Two companions of th injured man are held.

Roy Dow, 26, suffered injuries to his skull and is in the hospital.

Edward Mrotek, 26, and Ray Napier 23, are held in jail without charge pending investigation by police of the charge made by E. Grall of Manitowoc that the car in the accident was stolen from him.

FARMER KILLS WIFE, SELF WITH SHOTGUN

Galesville—(AP)—With an old rusty shotgun obtained from a neighbor, Milton Butman, 50, shot and killed his wife, Janet, 45, and then took his own life early Monday at their farm home four miles south of here.

Three children, from nine to fifteen years old, sleeping in rooms upstairs, did not hear the shooting. They discovered the bodies of their parents when they arose for breakfast.

Authorities learned Butman had been involved in financial difficulties.

Eight Dead From Sunday Air Crashes

Three Others in Falls but Escape Without Apparent Serious Injuries

(By the Associated Press)

Eight men were killed in Sunday airplane crashes.

William Spaletta, Larry Beatty and Billy Winzel, were killed when a plane owned and piloted by Spaletta crashed near Eureka, Calif.

H. E. Larue, pilot, Loren Craven and Emil Dietrich were fatally injured when a machine went into a tail spin, and fell in flames near Lowry field, Denver.

Gerald Miller and Myron Kelly were burned to death in a similar accident near Columbia Station, Ohio.

The pilot and two passengers of a plane which struck a downward current and crashed at Armonk, N. Y., escaped without apparent serious injuries.

An obsession for aviation which led them to fly a second-hand biplane purchased only two weeks ago was blamed for the death of Miller, 19, and Kelley, 21, both of Elyria.

The youths were killed when, at an altitude of about 200 feet, the plane went into a tail spin and crashed on a farm eight miles south of here. Scores of motorists saw the plane fall, but were unable to get its occupants because of flames. It was 20 minutes before the charred bodies were recovered.

The flaming airplane carried three men to their deaths at Denver when H. E. Larue, Denver pilot, was unable to bring the ship out of a tail spin.

At Eureka, Colo., three men are dead because a musician whose hearing was impaired believed an airplane dive from a great height would restore his ability to catch the lighter notes of an orchestra.

The musician persuaded an aviator and a fellow musician to attempt the dive. An airplane wing which buckled as the flyer tried to check the drop sent the trio hurling 3,500 feet to earth, where their crumpled plane burned before the bodies could be extracated. Several hundred persons saw the crash. The plane fell with such force that the engine was buried in the earth.

DEMOCRATS STAGE BATTLE ON COAST

California Primary May Be Deciding Factor at Houston

San Francisco—(AP)—California voters will cast their ballots in a presidential primary Tuesday which many observes predict may prove the deciding factor in selection of the Democratic nominee at the national party convention in Houston.

Three Democrats are seeking the support of the state's 26 delegates. They are Senator James A. Reed of Missouri; Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana.

The Republicans have only one candidate—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, to whom the state's 29 delegates will be pledged.

Prohibition has been the principal question involved in the Democratic campaign. Religious issues also have been injected.

Reed is the unknown factor. Doubt that the Missouri senator can even hope to win the delegation has been expressed by political observers, but the vote polled by Reed, cutting into the ballots cast for Smith and Walsh, may prove the determining factor.

The Smith candidacy was supported by Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming. In her California aldress, Mrs. Ross said opposition to the presidential candidacy of the New York governor was founded on considerations which, often were so presented as to create an erroneous impression.

An unusually heavy registration shows 1,254,514 Republican voters, and 465,793 Democrats. Registration officials said that many Republicans changed their party affiliations to cast their ballots for a Democratic candidate.

New Serial Starts Today

Anne Austin, whose stories go into millions of homes and who has one of the largest reader followings in the country, is the author of The Appleton Post-Crescent's new serial starting today on page 5.

The title is "Girl Alone." It is a love story and it details the adventures of an orphan who runs away from a farm and joins a carnival.

The adventures of Sally Ford, the orphan, form one of the most interesting serials Anne Austin has written and she has to her credit such successes as "Saint and Sinner," Daughters of Midas" and "The Penny Princess."

FLYERS HAPPY AT GREETINGS FROM AMERICA

Crew of Bremen Welcomed by Crowds Wherever They Appear in New York

New York —(AP)— Three TransAtlantic fliers from foreign shores were taken to the city's heart Monday and given a tumultuous welcome that left them breathless.

The occasion was the official welcome to Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Major James Fitzmaurice and it was a welcome in which all the city seemed to be participating.

After a triumphal tour of the harbor, during which the Irish airman, like a boy at play, amused himself by manipulating the city tug's siren in answer to the shrill salutes of a host of flag decked craft, the fliers were led through the deep canyons of the lower city by 10,000 troops for their official welcome by the mayor.

A light rain fell upon the pageant but it went unheeded alike by the guests of honor and those who stood long hours for a change to see and cheer them.

The rain was light, but a storm of another sort, the paper blizzard that New York stages for its heroes, raged unabated and the streets were ankle deep with ticker tape.

Sunday the fliers spent what was supposed to have been a quiet day, but every time they so much as stuck their heads out of their hotel apartment they were met by surging crowds that filled the lobbies and crowded the streets.

The three flyers called on Cardinal Hayes. The new clothes for which seven tailors had a busy time measuring them Saturday night were not yet ready and they made their appearance in the outfits they wore on their air volage across the Atlantic. The two Germans were in civilian clothes while the dashing major was in the worn khaki of the Irish Free State airforce, his officer's cap set at a jaunty angle.

GREET FITZ WARMLY

He seemed to be the focus of attention and was met by cries of "Hye, Fitz," "Hello there, Fitz" wherever he went. He answered by a wave of a khaki clad arm expressive of the breezy spirit he has shown since he joined the adventure.

After being received by the cardinal Captain Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice drove to St. Patrick's cathedral where they attended mass. At the conclusion the Star Spangled Banner was played and the flyers stood at attention.

The baron meanwhile had slipped away to the church of his faith, St. Peter's Lutheran in Lexington-ave. Entering unannounced he was introduced to the congregation and addressed the classes of youngsters in the Sunday school.

The Baron was beaming like a boy at seeing German faces and hearing the German tongue again.

The impression made upon the fliers themselves by the reception was best known by their exclamations when they first saw the crowd, estimated at 50,000 waiting for them at the Battery.

"Ach Himmel," said the baron.

"Wonderful," cried Captain Koehl.

Marvelous, too marvelous," said the Irish major.

Waiting at the city hall were the wives of Major Fitzmaurice and Captain Koehl and the Major's seven year old daughter Patsy, just arrived from Europe.

Both women expressed great impatience to see their husbands, but in the meantime spoke with pride of their accomplishment. Both asserted that they would gladly fly back to Europe in the Bremen, but they felt quite sure their husbands wouldn't let them.

Patsy spent her time scanning the crowds for the face of her father.

When the fliers reached the city hall they were at once greeted by Mayor Walker. Mrs. Fitzmaurice and Patsy climbed onto a stenographers table and Mrs. Koehl onto a chair for the first climpse of the men they had not seen since they flew away on their perilous adventure.

As the aviators were shaking hands with the mayor, the two pilots looked over his shoulder and smiled at the two women and the child who were throwing them kisses. Through all the excitement Patsy kept tight hold of a teddy bear.

WAUSAU BEATERS GET 10 YEARS SENTENCES

Wausau —(AP)— Ben and Frank Scheffler captured by a posse several weeks ago were sentenced Saturday to spend from 10 to 14 years in the state prison. They pleaded guilty to a charge of third degree murder in the death of Roy Gardner of Mosinee who died after being beaten by the two brothers.

TWELVE LABOR GROUPS FAVOR HERBERT HOOVER

Cleveland, O.—(AP)—A letter signed by the heads of twelve national labor oragnization supporting the candidacy of Secretary Herbert Hoover in the Indiana primaries was made public here Monday. It was announced by D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Lively May Day Promised Paris By "Red" Laborers

Paris—(AP)—The "Red belt" of Paris promises to be the most lively spot in Europe Tuesday as far as May day labor demonstrations are concerned.

French communists have declared they will have "a real affair" for the first time since 1920 when a number of persons were killed and many injured in a clash between police and radical demonstrators who attempted to force an entrance into the chamber of deputies.

On the other hand M. Chieppe, prefect of police, has assured the people of Paris that if there is any rough work it will not last long.

With the possible exceptions of Brussels and Warsaw, the rest of Europe expects to see the laboring classes enjoy one long holiday punctuated with parades, brass bands, oratory and "hot dog" sandwiches.

In Brussels, the central committee of the Syndicated Workers of Belgium has issued an appeal to workers to denounce the "capitalistic powers, and protest against the high cost of living and the slow rise of wages." Belgian police will be mobilized to quell any disturbances.

The police in Poland are prepared, for minor clashes between the socialists and communists Tuesday but expect no serious difficulties.

EARLY ARRESTS

Marshall Pilsudski, the Polish dictator, will not tolerate any riots as in former years and, indeed, has already taken the precaution of having a number of notorious trouble-makers arrested.

The socialists seem to have the upper hand in Austria. Viennese workmen will demonstrate for world peace and disarmament with little likelihood of interference from communists their traditional enemies.

Mussolini has turned thumbs down on the observance of May day even as a holiday, having suffered it in 1923 and replaced it with the annual celebration of the foundation of Rome on April 21.

May day celebrations in Germany have been singularly free from rioting and the police expect little trouble.

Hyde Park, noted safety valve of the British empire, will be thrown wide open Tuesday to any Britisher who thinks he has a grievance to share with the world. All he needs is a soap box.

Demonstrations by workers organizations have been suspended in Spain by Primo De Rivera, dictator-prime minister, since he and his military associates seized power in 1923. However, workers generally will make holiday.

In Norway, Sweden and Denmark Tuesday will be a holiday, but with few demonstrations. There is less unemployment in Norway than a year ago and no strikes, and this also applies to Sweden.

CHILD FALLS INTO TANK AND DROWNS

Raymond Selle, 2, Had Been Left Playing in Yard a Few Minutes Before

Dale—Raymond Selle, 2, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Selle, living on a farm south of here, was drowned when he fell into a water tank in the barnyard Saturday evening.

The family was preparing to go to town when the child, left to play in the yard a few minutes before, was missed. A search was started immediately and the body found in the water tank.

A physician was called but was unable to restore life after an hour of effort.

Funeral services will be held from the home at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. Mr. Reier in charge. Burial will be in the Dale-Medina cemetery.

INDIAN DEATH STILL PUZZLES AUTHORITIES

Manitowoc—(AP)—Although a coroner's report cleared up one angle of the death of Jim Skenadore, Indian whose body was found on a road near Maple Grove, Wis., Friday, county authorities Monday were confronted by two questions which they hoped to have answered before a coroner's jury.

The coroner reported that a cut on Skenadore's thigh, was not made by a knife or axe, as had been thought. Authorities sought a solution to the question of how the clothing of Ned Antoni, Indian held in connection with the case, came to be bloodstained, and how Skenadore's body got to the side of the road. The theory is that the Indian was struck by a car.

Antoni will appear before the coroner's jury Monday afternoon.

A search by a posse of the land surrounding Antoni's shack and the spot were Skenadore's body was found, was made Sunday and no weapons were found.

The coroner made a trip to Oneida, Wis., to hold a second autopsy over Skenadore's body.

MADISON WOMAN SEEKS LONG-LOST BROTHER

Madison—(AP)—Mrs. Betty Grunert, living near here, is hunting, through many letters written to all parts of the world, for her brothers, from whom she was separated in a Chicago orphanage 27 years ago.

She was adopted by Wisconsin farm people, he by a minister. He revolted at the minister's care and ran away to sea. He wrote to her seventeen years ago, care of the orphanage; the letter has just been received.

RESCUING CRAFTS FIGHT HEAVY SEA

Fourth Ship Rushed to Help of Fuelless Shipping Board Steamer

Norfolk, Va., —(AP)— Three government craft which have been playing a game of catch on and let go with the shipping board steamer Western Ocean off the Virginia Capes for a week were fighting heavy seas in an effort to get another tow line to her Monday while a fourth ship was rushing to their assistance.

Twice before lines had been attached to the drifting ship, but storms intervened and parted them after she had been towed from 50 to 100 miles nearer shore. Sunday night, the craft, which has a crew of 31 aboard, was reported drifting 360 miles from the capes, 80 miles farther out than when she ran out of fuel April 18.

The ships now with the helpless craft are the Coast Guard Cutter Mascoutin and Carrabassett and the Navy Tug Keywaydin. The Cutter Seneca was reported to have left New York to help not only the Western Ocean, but the assisting craft themselves. Reports Sunday night said they were having difficulty in a northwest gale, with waves breaking.

DEMOCRATIC EDITOR IS KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Washington—(AP)—Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer on the New York Evening World was selected Monday to deliver the keynote speech at the Democratic National convention.

At a meeting of members of the Democratic national committee charged with making arrangement for the convention, Bower's name was proposed by Mrs. Leroy Spring of South Carolina. His selection was unanimous.

Bowers is a former Indian and the author of a number of books built around historical events in the early days of American republic.

FINE AMERICAN WOMEN FOR RELIGIOUS ACTS

Broussa, Turkey—(AP)—Three American women, charged with disseminating religious propaganda were found guilty Monday by a Turkish court and sentenced to three days imprisonment and a fine of three lira each (the Turkish lira at pari worth $4.60).

In consideration that American teachers are women and foreigners, however, they will be permitted to use the American School at Brousa with which they are connected as their place of detention.

Washington—(AP)—The senate Monday ordered an investigation of presidential campaign expenditures. The probe was proposed by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

Medford, —(AP)— In less than three hours, a jury was selected Monday to try Steve Ahan, Taylor-co. farmer, on a charge of slaying Steve Shewczyk, near Lublin Jan. 22. Kahan, charged with first degree murder, admits the slaying but claims self-defense and also claims that both he and Shewczyk were drunk.

Washington—(AP) —The $203,000,000 tax reduction bill was ordered reported to the senate Monday by its finance committee and Chairman Smoot expects it to be taken up on Thursday.

Washington—(AP)—The house finally approved Monday the senate bill to award the distinguished flying cross to six foreign aviators who have added new chapters to aviation history recently and the measure was sent to the White House for the signature of President Coolidge.

THREE WOMEN KILLED IN WEEKEND ACCIDENTS

Milwaukee—(AP)— Three Milwaukee women lost their lives in two automobile accidents Saturday night and Sunday when ideal weather caused the highways to be jammed with traffic.

The victim were Mi Eleanore Leitner 22, Mrs. Adelaide Westness 61, and Mrs. Bertha Krichn 65.

Mrs. Leitner was killed after midnight Saturday when an automobile carrying her and several others home from dance crashed into the side of a freight train.

The other two women were injured fatally when Louis J. Westness, 65, retired Milwaukee police sergeant lost control of his car in Waukesha. His wife was hurled through the top of the car when it struck another driven by Arnold Smith. Mr. Krein died half an hour later in a hospital.

WANDERING MAN KILLS SELF AS POSSE NEARS

Ashland (AP) A search for Ivor Johnson, farmer and former soldier who disappeared Thursday ended Sunday when John on took his own life at a point of 50 men approached him.

When the man failed to return Thursday night nothing was thought of it because he was in the habit taking he chances and wandering for a day or two in the woods. Saturday, a small group of farmers searched the wood and Sunday a posse was organized.

As the posse approached Johnson he saw him put the muzzle of the shotgun to his mouth and fire the load into his head.

10,000 SOUTH TROOPS APPROACHING TSINAN

Shanghai— (AP) —Official dispatches Monday said 10,000 southern troops have entered Kushan, 10 miles south of Tsinan.

Severe fighting with heavy casualties was also occurring both to the south and east of Tsinan which the nationalists expect to occupy within a day or two.

ARREST TOWN OF MAINE MAN ON PEACE WARRANT

Sam Strong, town of Maine, was arrested Saturday on a peace warrant secured by Elmer Strong, his uncle, also of the town of Maine who charges his nephew theratened to "get him." Strong was arraigned in municipal court Saturday afternoon and pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Thursday afternoon. He furnished a $500 bond.

MILWAUKEE PAIR LOSE CAR, MONEY TO GUNMEN

Milwaukee—(AP)—A story of having been forced by two gunmen to drive to Waukesha early Monday was told by Sidney Shiditti, 27, and Angeline Crantz, 23 of Milwaukee, Monday. Their automobile is missing.

Sheriff Alvin Redford of Waukesha, to whom the incident was reported by Shiditti was investigating Monday with Milwaukee police. According to Shiditti, he and the girl were seated in his car in front of her home about 12:15 Monday morning when confronted by two gunmen.

They forced him, he said, to drive towards Waukesha, and then put him out of the car and drove away with his girl. Miss Crantz called her mother from a farmhouse later and said she had been robbed. The girl said the men put her out at a lonely corner of the outskirts of the town and drove away in Shiditti's car.

The motive for the strange incident has not been explained.

Lindy Plane Makes Final Air Journey

Spirit of St. Louis, Which Flew 40,000 Miles in Year, Goes to Museum

St. Louis, Mo. —(AP)— Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took the "Spirit of St. Louis" on its last flight Monday. He left Lambert-St. Louis field at 9 o'clock in the morning for Washington where the ocean-spanning monoplane will be placed in the Smithsonian Institution for exhibit with other history-making airplanes.

The ship, which has flown slightly more than 40,000 miles under the hand of its famous pilot in a score of countries in its year of existence, carried Lindbergh through his epoch making New York-to-Paris flight, a tour of the United States and Canada, and the goodwill flight to South America.

Millions of people, cranning to catch a glimpse of its flashing silver wings, have thrilled to the sound of its motor, knowing that it was part of a matchless combination that has written air history. Its fame caught the fancy of young and old alike.

Col. Lindbergh himself, spoke with an accent of pride as he told of the miles the single motored plane had traversed without failing.

"The Spirit has flown slightly more than 40,000 miles," he said. "It has been inspected several times and nothing materially wrong has been found. It is apparently in perfect mechanical condition."

DRUNKEN DRIVER TO LOSE HIS LICENSE

Judge Berg Fines Kaukauna Man $50 After Arrest Following Crash

William Kramer, III Island st, Kaukauna, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday after pleading guilty of drunken driving. A recommendation asking that Kramer's driving license be revoked for six months was sent to the secretary of state by Judge Berg.

Officer James McFadden, Kaukauna, arrested Kramer Thursday night after his machine crashed into the rear of a machine parked on Catherine st., Kaukauna. The front of Kramer's car was demolished but the other machine was not damaged. Kramer was held in the police station in Kaukauna until Friday.

ORDER PROBE OF OIL LEASES AT SALT CREEK

Washington (AP)—Investigation of oil leases on Salt Creek oil field in Wyoming was ordered Monday by the senate.

A bill by Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska directing the senate public lands committee to make the investigation was adopted without debate or roll call.

Leases in the Salt Creek field in Wyoming were granted during closing days of the last Democratic administration and the early days of the Harding Republican regime and charges of fraud in the transaction have been made by Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana.

CHARGE BAD CONDITIONS IN FEDERAL LAND BANKS

Washington —(AP)— Charging that conditions "approaching a national scandal" existed in six of the twelve federal land banks, Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina, introduced a resolution Monday asking Secretary Mellon to transmit to the senate the annual report of the Federal farm loan board for last year.

The resolution which now goes to the senate, was approved at a meeting attended earlier by Governor Young of the Federal reserve board.

COUNTRY MUST MEET ENGLISH BILL DEMANDS

Egyptian Government Given Until Wednesday Evening to Withdraw Regulation

GETS FINAL WARNING

Bill Permits All Public Assemblies and Prohibits Police Interference

BULLETIN

London—(AP)—The Egyptian government has until 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, to comply with the British demand that the bill for the regulation of public meetings and demonstrations be withdrawn.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, in making this announcement in the house of commons, Monday said that Lord Lloyd, the British high commissioners, on instruction from the British government, had handed to the Egyptian premier a final warning Sunday evening.

London—(AP)—Several British warships and cruisers sailed Monday morning from Malta for Egypt in connection with an Anglo-Egyptian crisis which revolves around the Egyptian public assemblies bill.

An ultimatum demanding the withdrawal of the bill within three days was handed the Egyptian government Sunday night by the British.

The situation Monday was grave and fraught with serious possibilities, although in official circles in London it was thought that the difficulties were not insurmountable and the sky might clear suddenly. There was no effort, however, to minimize the seriousness of the crisis.

It was stated that the British did not mention sanctions in their note to Egypt as a penalty for Egypt's refusal to comply but in well-informed circles the opinion was expressed that sanctions would be applied if the Egyptians were obdurate.

It remained to be seen whether the sending of warships from Malta could be taken as a warning of such sanctions.

The Egyptian stand concerning the assemblies bill is regarded as another step in the Egyptian campaign for absolute independence. The assemblies bill in effect permits all sorts of public assemblies and prohibits the police from interfering unless disorders have already started. Much bloodshed has resulted from assemblies in the past, including the deaths of foreigners. The British attitude is that the proposed bill should not be allowed passage.

RIPARIANS CAN'T AGREE ON HOW OT STOP HIGH WATER

President Tripp's Reservoir Plans Run into Snags at New London

BY W. F. WINSEY

New London—Fifty riparian owners, renters and others, living on or near the Wolf river between Oshkosh and Shiocton, attended the meeting of the Association for the Relief of High Water in the city hall, here Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called by Alan H. Tripp, president of the association, for the purpose of giving the officers an opportunity to report to the members what had been done along the line of relief and what the present relief program is.

Excerpts from reports of several departments of the federal and state governments, showing what had been done were read by President Tripp's secretary. In this manner, a connected history of the activities of government and association officials was recited.

Relief from floods has been obtained in the Lake Winnebago and Lake Poygan districts by holding the water in Lake Winnebago at a lower stage than in the past and by raising the canal boats and lock walls and gates below the Menasha dam an the Fox river. For obtaining relief from high water up the river from Fremont and in New London, Shiocton, and farther north, the original plan was to dig a drainage ditch from Leeman, in Outagamie-co to Duck Creek near Green Bay Surveys made by engineers, however, proved the Shiocton-Duck Creek canal to be impractical an l impossible on account of the original cost and upkeep. The cost of this canal was estimated at $17,156,904. "The Shiocton cut-off should receive no farther attention," Gilbert Van B. Wilkes, district engineer, wrote in a report and concluded by saying, "It is recommended that no survey be made for the further study of flood conditions on the Wolf and Fox rivers, but that riparians and others locally interested be left to solve the problem of increasing the value of their property, as other citizens must by their own exertions."

After the survey proved the Shiocton cut-off to be impractical, the Association began to consider the matter of impounding the flood waters of the Wolf river in series of reservoirs from Leeman north through the Indian reservation. As no combination of farmers nor Indians nor of any other class of people could finance such a gigantic project unless they could use the water for power purposes, a permit was issued to a power company with the consent of the Association to make preliminary surveys in the Indian reservation. This kind of relief from high water was the chief subject of discussion at the New London meeting. The speakers were President Tripp, George Williams, attorney for the association, Rev. F. S. Dayton, New London, Arthur P. Kannenberg, Oshkosh, Mike Mack, Shiocton, George Overton, Butte des Morts, George Randall, city engineer, Oshkosh and R. E. Greenhagen, Oshkosh.

"If you people in New London get relief from high water, you will get it only through the building of reservoirs in the Indian reservation," said Mr. Tripp. I do not base this decision on the interests of trappers, fishermen nor hunters but on the interests of farmers and the people of cities and villages. We are organized to protect these people. That part of the matter is settled. We are not going to quit until the flood waters are controlled at New London, Shiocton and all along the Wolf River."

"I was brought up near on the Wolf River," said Mr. Greenhagen. This river goes on a rampage twice each year and no matter what you do the old river will rise at times and flood your lands."

"The greater part of the flood water falls in this vicinity. Only twelve percent of it comes from the Indian reservation or above.

"The great hubbub over building reservoirs in the Indian reservation is propaganda of the power companies that is heard throughout the country. Those reservoirs, if built, will not help you people a particle."

"I know that the lovers of nature and science beauty, nor here and to come, have a claim to the preservation of the beauty of the reservation more insistent and reasonable than is that of power companies. This movement of power companies in the reservation is just another example of their expansion throughout the country. Their promise of preserving beauty is all bosh."

"During floods on the Embarrass river in this vicinity, I have never heard of the presence of engineers for the purpose of getting information about the cause of floods," said the Rev. Mr. Dayton. I know that the building of reservoirs in the Indian reservation is a matter of dollars and cents with the power companies. He made a strong plea for the preservation of the scenic beauty on the reservation, for the enjoyment of Indian and white man of this generation and of generations to follow. "The beauty of the reservation will be destroyed if those dams are built. It is a shame to have them built with such destruction in sight."

Mr. Williams said that power companies would operate under contract with the government to preserve the original beauty of the Indian reservation in building the reservoirs. "If we have faith in our government, we have no reason to fear. The Indian, farmers and no one else but power companies could possibly build these reservoirs and power companies would not do it if the investment could not supply power. The government is not anxious to develop water power, nor to go into business. Building reservoirs is the only means of relief from high water.

Mr. Mack said that he could not understand how the building of water powers in the Indian reservation would control floods in Shiocton or New London. Very little flood water from above the reservation causes trouble in Shiocton and down stream. The floods originate nearer home "When reservoirs are filled to capacity or near it they can supply no protection against floods down river," he said.

Mr. Randall said that Oshkosh and Fond du Lac got relief from floods by lowering the level of Lake Winnebago and raising the banks of the Fox River below Menasha. To give relief to riparians between New London and Lake Poygan, Mr. Randall proposed that the river be widened at narrow places and reservoirs be built between New London and Fremont to take care of surpluses. President Tripp, Mr. Williams and others insisted that the only possible way of controlling floods above New London is reservoirs in the reservation and south as far as Leeman.

LETTER GOLF

AN ILLUMINATING PUZZLE

A LAMP is a handy thing to have around the DESK—especially if you are working today's letter golf puzzle—it helps to throw light on the subject. Par is seven, according to the letter golf editor's count, but you may be able to beat the solution on page 9.

L	A	M	P
D	E	S	K

THE RULES

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes Thus to change Cow to Hen, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter of common usage, for each jump Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

3—You must have a complete word, at a time.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

6 LAWRENCE GRADS GIVEN FELLOWSHIPS

Two Appleton Students Are Among Those Honored by Other Schools

Six men of this year's graduating class at Lawrence College have been awarded fellowships in state universities. Four of them will go to the University of Illinois, Burton Behling, Oshkosh, and Leonard Zingler, Suring in the Economics department while Glen Kuettel, Appleton and Carl Thompson, Appleton, will enter the science department. The University of Michigan has selected Alexander Smith of Green Bay to do advance work in botany, and Nebraska State University has chosen Glen Iwen for work in their chemistry laboratories.

FARMERS WORK SUNDAY TO BEAT SPRING RAINS

Encouraged by good weather Saturday and Sunday farmers in the vicinity of Appleton spent the weekend on their land, according to rural carriers. Sunday afternoon there was a threat of rain and farmers speeded up in an effort to get as much seeding done as possible. They are afraid another rain storm will put the land in such condition that seeding will be delayed for another week. Already considerable damage has been done by inclement weather, the farmers say.

ROTARIANS TO REAR ROHAN ON FORESTRY

CHICAGO GUNMEN KILL YOUNG GIRL

Scream of Usherette as Bandits Rob Theatre Results in Death

Chicago —(AP)— The slaying of women has been added to the blood and terror repertoire of Chicago gunmen.

They slew 17-year-old Pearl Eggerson Sunday night as she cowered under their guns in the cashier's cage of the Ritz theatre in suburban Berwyn; slew her because she screamed at the sight of eyes that stared through oval masks, and guns that poked at her from out-side the glass wall.

An army automatic roared and the little usherette fell. The man with the pistol and his companion with a sawed-off shotgun opened the door to the ticket booth, stepped over the girl's body and over that of the cashier, Miss Gertrude Plante who had fainted, and scooped up $1,500 of the theatre's receipts.

With the lot in their arms, the robbers used their guns to hold back 60 persons in the ticket line, and walked to the curb where a companion waited at the wheel of an automobile bearing a New York license. Each fired a shot in the direction of the crowd before leaping into the machine and disappearing into the night.

Miss Eggerson was employed in an Oak Park department store and increased her weekly income by acting as usherette at the Ritz theatre Sunday nights.

Miss Ruth Denzer who recently submitted to an operation at St. Elizabeth hospital has returned to her home at Kaukauna.

SPEAKING STUDENTS TALK AT SPEAKING CLASS DINNER

Members of the chamber of commerce Y. M. C. A. public classes this week will receive copies of the program for their dinner at 6:30 Tuesday evening, May 8, at the Y. M. C. A. The committee in charge of the program is composed of F. M. Ingler, chairman, John Neller, W. H. Falatick, Kenneth Corbett, and G. F. Werner.

The program will consist of a song by the group, followed by a talk on the operation of the Appleton water department by J. J. Plank. The history and meaning of Memorial Day will be given by N. G. Galipeau and J. G. Mohr will talk, on music in the home. International Arbitration will be the topic presented by George Wettengel, and C. E. Foresman will talk on the managerial form of city government. The wards of the state and their care will explained in a short talk by Dr. Charles Reineck.

After the speeches there will be an open forum.

Halitosis? Don't Guess

New-type Antiseptic changes color when a cause is present. Then acts to correct it

If your mouth is "acid" or old food particles are lodged between the teeth or there are hidden cavities giving off an odor from decay, Semafor, the new-type scientific liquid antiseptic, with which you wash your mouth for 20 seconds, is expectorated WHITE (although originally RED in color).

As this antiseptic corrects the mouth's condition through continued rinsings this indicator liquid turns back again as you expectorate—from white to pink to red. The shade indicates the degree of change.

Thus Semafor is the first effective liquid antiseptic to demonstrate your mouth's condition DAILY and its own action in the mouth, cleanses and corrects it, and shows when this is done.

It is a development by Dr. Alfred Kropff, B. S., M. A., Ph. D. It is patented and can't be duplicated.

It makes old time washes out of date because it permits you to be more certain about your personal hygiene.

Semafor also visibly removes film from teeth and makes gums firm and pink—so it is a beautifier too.

35c Bottle FREE

Dentists and physicians want more people to use Semafor regularly to keep mouth clean and healthy. So we have agreed to give a 35c bottle free to introduce—see below.

Let the Kelvinator man test your refrigerator

KELVINATOR is making a city-wide test of home refrigerators. Within the next few weeks the Kelvinator man will come to your home and ask if he may test yours.

He will tell you accurately and frankly just what protection your refrigerator is giving against taint and spoilage. Certainly important where family health is concerned!

Refrigeration, you see, is simply a matter of temperature. If the thermometer test shows your refrigerator constantly under fifty degrees, you are protected from the bacteria of decay.

If it varies over that temperature . . . and most old-fashioned refrigerators do . . . your family is being subjected to foods containing high bacterial activity.

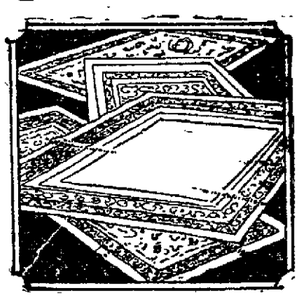

Let the Kelvinator man test your refrigerator . . . he will give you a better and clearer understanding of what the constant cold of Kelvination means to you and your family.

FIRMS FIGURING ON FOREIGN TRADE HAVE DATA IN ABUNDANCE

No Reason to Start Out Blindfolded, Chamber of Commerce Bulletin Says

The time has long since passed when the American trader entering the export field must, like the babes in the woods, find his own way, it is pointed out by the Department of Foreign Commerce of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A varied list of export businesses, together with listings of the fields that are over and under supplied has been sent out by the national chamber and a copy is on file at the local chamber offices.

"The American foriegn trader," the Department says, "has available a wide network of agencies to assist him in carrying on his business with overseas clients such as is available in no other country."

In its "Foreign Commerce Handbook, 1928-29," just completed, the Department lists, under 95 alphabetically arranged topical headings, hundreds of sources in the United States from which information and service in export and import trade may be obtained. Under Government agencies is singled out particularly the Government Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; business sassociations include the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Manufacturers' Export Association, the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Foreign Trade Council, the American Exporters' and Importers' Association, and the National Council of American Importers and Traders.

Mention also is made of the services of the International Chamber of Commerce, the Pan American Union, the Pan Pacific Union, the foreign trade bureaus of chambers of commerce in the United States, the American foreign trade clubs, and various national associations.

EXPECT 8,000 MOTHERS AT UNIVERSITY EVENT

Madison—(AP)—Nearly eight thousand invitations have been mailed to mothers of University of Wisconsin students for the Mothers' Day program May 18, 19 and 20. It is expected that more than 4,000 mothers will attend.

The opporunity of personally meeting the President of the school in which their children are taking courses will be given the mothers at a reception in the home of president Glenn Frank on the evening of May 19. At the reception the mothers are expected to discuss policies and programs of the state university. Dr Dr. Frank is also to be principal speaker at a concert given by the University band on Sunday, the last day of the mothers' week-end celebration. His address will be given in the intermission of the concert

Visiting mothers are to be given the opportunity of visiting classes and teachers of their children. Church services have been arranged by all of the Madison churches with a special view to accomodating the visiting mothers.

The "senior swingout", a farewell to the Senior women by all the women of the University, led by the juniors, is a feature of the week-end program. The senior women in caps and gowns, and the junior women, dressed in white and carrying a chain made of daisies, present a picture on the staid old campus.

CHAMBER PLEADS FOR LAW SIMPLIFICATION FOR DISPUTED TAXES

Figures Show That More Than Half a Million Cases Are Now on Dockets

An earnest plea for simplification of the administrative provisions of the federal revenue law and the necessary administrative organization so as to expedite the settlement of disputed cases is contained in a report made by the Committee on Federal Taxation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which includes also references to the pending revenue bill and recommendations of the Joint Congressional Tax committee.

The Committee points out that there are now pending before the Income Tax Unit 693,928 disputed cases in addition to 19,612 cases on the docket of the Board of Tax Appeals. These grow out of returns filed in the following years:

1917	359
1918	479
1919	643
1920	972
1921	955
1922	1,717
1923	8,894
1924	53,417
1925	160,472
1926	466,520

"It will be seen from the above table, "the Committee says, "that there are now pending unadjusted in the Bureau over 2,500 returns which were filed for 1920 or earlier. There are also nearly 70,000 returns made for 1924 or prior years which have been pending a minimum of three years or a maximum of ten years. Obviously three or four years is a considerable period of time to wait for the determination of a tax liability and ten years is little short of intolerable."

THE EDITH CAVELL FILM

Shall "Dawn," the picture relating to the tragic story of Edith Cavell, be shown? Would it be good taste? Would it arouse the dying embers of bitterness produced by the war? Or would it, on the other hand, be one of those hideous but helpful things which go to show what a horrible travesty on life, on love, on decency, war really is?

The picture originating in England was opposed by Germans, to which opposition Sir Austin Chamberlain bluntly expressed the opinion that to display it would be against public policy, and that in fact it is "an outrage on a noble woman's memory." But is it really so? Despite the fact that the execution of Miss Cavell created at that time intense feeling against the German authorities, in these days, with the fogs of war and the intense feelings engendered, cleared away from our vision, the best opinion supports the execution as being a lawful exercise of authority during wartime. That the death of Miss Cavell was, nevertheless, a great blunder of policy, as was the attitude of the German authorities in turning a deaf ear to the strong American appeals addressed to them for clemency, is equally as true. Miss Cavell was tried for aiding able-bodied men to escape, which in war is military crime carrying with it the punishment of death. Yet, and glorifying her, the stark fact remains that Miss Cavell reckoned with the cost and noted it as trivial in performing her duty, as she saw it, to serve her country. While she was rightly condemned the blunder of taking the lawful "pound of flesh" has placed her high in the annals of those splendid heroes who grace and ennoble the pages of history.

Treating the picture as the truthful narrative of an historical fact cannot and will not tend to arouse any racial prejudice. Treating it, as in fact it was, the story of a noble woman who deliberately and very willingly gave her life to help her cause, gives it two fine educational features, one the heights to which lowly human nature can soar, the other the grim, stern, unrelenting, and as unmerciful, rules of war.

The more serious issue, however, relates to the accuracy of the film. Any exaggeration either in painting the conduct of the German authorites or in enhancing the facts concerning Miss Cavell's conduct will only arouse just criticism. According to the film, when the time for her execution arrives, one of the German firing party refuses to shoot and for his insubordination is killed on the spot by the officer in charge of the squad, whereat Miss Cavell faints and is executed in a slumped attitude at the foot of the stake to which she was loosely tied. The officer in charge of the execution subsequently commits suicide. The best evidence indicates that this picture is not true. The clergyman and physician who attended deny it. There is no evidence to support it. It is just red-hot drama poured in where no seasoning is necessary. Accuracy in historical films is essential and particularly when it is better for all concerned. Miss Cavell did not faint. No one of the firing squad refused to fire. The officer did not commit suicide. Excluding these fantasies and including the truth, puts Miss Cavell on a plane with our revolutionary hero, Nathan Hale, and his historical remark: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country." On the moment of her departure for the place of execution Miss Cavell said, "Tell my loved ones that my soul, I hope, is saved, and that I am glad to die for my country." Just before she was executed she remarked: "I now see that patriotism is not enough, and that we are not to hate anyone, but to love all." History should make much of that statement. With it indelibly written into every heart there could be no war.

To show the Edith Cavell film it it truly covers the facts is not, and cannot be taken by the German people, as an offense against them. It would show the abiding depths of feeling and the equally deep determination upon the part of simple souls, here a woman who had lived a quiet, unnoticed life; humanity at its very best. Is it not always thus, that from rural places and the ordinary walks in life heroes step out and blaze their imperishable records against the sky?

Edith Cavell, her sacrifice and her dying statements should be kept alive for all time, not as the death of a noble English woman but as an example of the demands of war and the payment of those demands by humanity.

THEN AND NOW

Monarchies have generally kept excellent records, but until they fall the records are kept secret. Exposing them has seldom been complimentary to the particular monarchy.

Since Austria became a republic a careful sorting out and analysis of all the papers accumulated through the centuries of Hapsburg rule has been made and reveals instructive stories. One of them relates to the early relations of the colonies on these shores with the then mighty and fearsome government of Austria.

Under the date of April 19. 1777, Benjamin Franklin who had been received as a representative of the colonies at the French court, restless and untiring in his efforts to get aid, any sort of aid, men, money or sympathy, undertook to make a coalition with Austria. His original letter sent on that date to the Austrian Ambassador at Paris has been brought to light after sleeping quietly a hundred and fifty years. It didn't receive much attention but it was sent by the Austrian Ambassador at Paris to the Imperial Chancellor at Vienna with his own impressions, quite uncomplimentary, concerning the new born nation over here. It was apparent that the efforts of these colonies were not received with a very warm feeling by the haughty gentleman who conducted the affairs of the Austrian Foreign Office. Illusions to us were cynical for we appeared to be a matter of very trivial moment to those at the helm in imperial Vienna, nor was there the slightest sympathy with American aspirations.

But Franklin persisted and the next year sent a representative, William Lee, to Vienna, where his reception was as haughty and unfriendly as might be anticipated. Yet when 1783 came around and the colonies had triumphed and several European nations had granted recognition of their independence it became apparent to Austria that it might be useful to arrange commercial relations with the new nation on the map. Still, such were the conditions surrounding the majesty of imperial governments, that the chancellor would not invite America to open up negotiations. That would be out of place, though it were entirely proper to hint to America that if she came in humble fashion on her knees she might receive the regal recognition.

But the colonies by this time were very independent. They would make humble advances to no one. They didn't care about bowing to royalty and it took a little time before diplomatic connections were actually smoothed out between the two nations.

How times have changed since then!

THE HUMAN SCRAP HEAP

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, in an article in the North American Review, deplores the growing practice in American industry of arbitrarily discharging workers when they reach the age of 50 or thereabouts.

This practice, if continued, will create a "serious and alarming" economic problem of national proportions, he believes.

Undoubtedly it represents one of the major issues that our times face. Some solution will have to be found before we can sit back and hymn the praises of our industrial civilization. The solution, probably, will come in due time: possibly through some form of industrial pensions, more liberal and extensive than anything now dreamed of. Industry is rapidly reaching the point where it can afford such a thing.

In Wichita, Kas., the women held a gasless day to protest gas rates. One of these days there's going to be a big news break when the dressmakers raise their prices.

That new loud speaker that would enable a speaker to address the entire population of a sizeable city isn't at all necessary for some people to make themselves heard.

Nobody can qualify for the 100 per cent American club these days until he has asked Lindbergh not to do something.

Love is that which a girl has who goes with a man who doesn't own a motor car. But maybe her idea is compassionate marriage.

Nature adjusts things pretty evenly. The wife is generally willing to make allowances in about the same proportion the husband is willing to give them.

Railway engines are said to make full use of only five per cent of the heat generated in their boilers.

The crocodile, given fair play in its native wilds, can live for 300 years.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician And Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

AN OUTLINE OF HYGIENE
No. 27—Sources of Infection

The majority of people acquire from trade announcements, sales talk and the like such knowledge as they may have about sanitary questions, especially sanitary questions as these apply to the individual and the home. Here and there one finds individual vendors or perhaps lines or classes of trade that merit implicit confidence, though the ancient principle, caveat emptor—let the buyer beware—is still in effect so far as the sanitary factor is concerned. For example, consider the childlike faith the average customer has in the "healing" power of his favorite "antiseptic" nostrum. Some cities have strict ordinances forbidding the sale of second hand mattresses, but none forbidding the sale of second hand clothing. The only explanation one can concieve for such a curious inconsistency is that the sale of the former does not benefit trade whereas the sale of the latter does.

Although disease germs are "bugs" in popular parlance, these microscopic organisms are more like plants than like animals in character. Is it not ridiculous to think of plants "lurking" or travelling or moving about automatically and without conveyor or carrier? Lest there be some doubt about it, I'll answer the question myself: The fancy that germs or bacteria or microbes, whichever you prefer to call them, can move an inch of their own activity, is absurd. No known disease virus or infection can travel in the air. Even the breath, the expired air, of a person ill of tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever or other infectious disease, is germ free if the patient is not coughing, sneezing or talking at the moment. Physicians have long known this and based their aseptic technic on it, in attending the sick. The laity, however, still imagines that the virus or infection is in the air in the neighborhood of such disease and especially in the patient's breath.

Many curious and more or less apocryphal stories seem to confirm the notion that objects, such as books, papers, toys, articles of clothing, letters, even treasury notes or coins, may carry scarlet fever or other infectious disease. To the best of my knowledge this never happens. I am satisfied that it is the best sanitary practice to ignore all of these alleged sources or modes of infection and to concentrate attention upon the pollution of food or water and the carrying of disease germs by animate carriers—human, animal, insect.

The great typhoid epidemic in Montreal a year ago was caused by the peddling of milk that was polluted with typhoid germs from an improperly controlled case of typhoid fever on a dairy farm. Most typhoid epidemics arise from the pollution of food, nowadays usually by a typhoid "carrier" who is at the time well, innocent and unsuspected.

For the individual who seeks to avoid infectious disease it is a sound working rule to recognize as the only sources or modes of infection the following:

1. Intimate association with the sick person.
2. Possibly pollution of food or water.
3. Opportunity for the agency of animate carriers.

In the next talk about this we shall discuss in detail the first of these sources of infection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Sweetening the Sauerkraut

My friend the postmaster submits a "reading notice," with this comment: Now I am all at sea again. After I had been converted to your teaching that the pores do not absorb anything, I come upon the inclosed clipping, and it reminds me of the old conundrum—when the doctors disagree who shall decide? The answer was the coroner.

Answer—The clipping is a reading notice of a sauerkraut factory. The manager tells the world of a wonderful new treatment of pneumonia by applying a poultice of cold sauerkraut to the victim's chest. The manager explains that the brine is absorbed by the pores and relief is obtained in a few hours. The method, he candidly admits, is not generally used in the state where the factory is situated, but its value is nevertheless becoming more and more apparent, and in fact it was long ago used by the Germans—in Germany. I venture to corroborate the sauerkraut man's testimony about this. The metohd is not generally used in his state but everywhere. As for Germany, we all know that the pneumonia death rate there always has been higher that it has been in America. If they used the cold sauerkraut poultice treatment in Germany . . . !

What Have You for Nothing?

1. Is hot chocolate or cocoa a wholesome morning drink for one who is in a very low state of health and very nervous. 2. What are the symptoms of . . . (B. M.)

Answer—Well, it is generally not unwholesome, but milk or soup might be more healthful for an invalid or a child. What, furnish symptoms to a sickly, nervous person? How could we pretend that this is a health column if we did this?

Giant Hives

Several months ago there was a letter in the paper from a woman who had been relieved of angioneurotic edema by medicine or treatment you had suggested. She declared she had suffered five years. I have had the same trouble three years and would be grateful for any suggestion you may offer. (Mrs. W. H.)

Answer—She said she had taken four boxes of adrenal gland substance and this seemed to put an end to the trouble. Of course she was under her physician's direction. That's the only way such treatment may be safely employed.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Monday, May 4, 1903

The pope's voice was heard for the first time in America when a graphaphone record of his voice was played in the university hall at Notre Dame.

A small riot occurred at Chicago that day as a result of a strike of 200 girls employed in a laundry.

The Brewers union of Appleton, Menasha and Neenah announced that day that no more beer would thereafter be sold on Sundays.

Dr. G. E. Johnson returned the previous Saturday from Chicago where he graduated the previous week from the Chicago Dental college. He was to locate in this city permanently.

A daughter and son of H. A. Kamps and a daughter of Matt Rossmeissl went May flowering the previous day and when they did not return at dark caused a great deal of alarm. The children returned safely about 8:30 explaining they had stopped on the wayside to arrange their flowers.

TEN YEARS AGO
Monday, April 29, 1918

Two American transports were damaged in a collision at sea, the navy department that day announced. No lives were lost and both vessels returned safely to an Atlantic port.

The first American soldiers back from the firing lines were welcomed in New York that day.

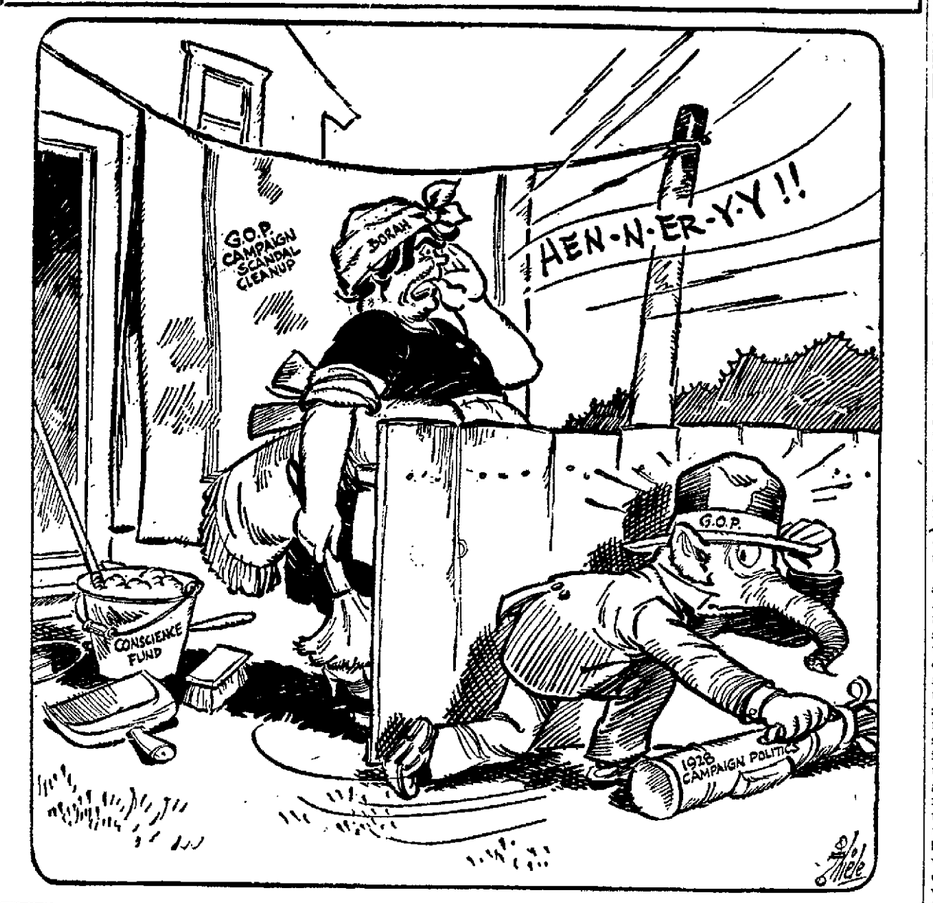

Miss Mildred Brandel had gone to Niellsville for a ten days visit with friends.

Dr. L. H. Moore left for Chicago the previous day where Dr. Moore was to attend a meeting of the Dunlop Research club.

A dinner in honor of Leon J. Wolf, Prospect-st, was given the previous evening in the French room of the Sherman house. Mr. Wolf was to leave the following Wednesday for Pittsburgh where he was to enter Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Miss Helen Sherman, a student at the University of Wisconsin, visited in Appleton that week.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

"AN ARTIST IN THE FAMILY"

You might expect Sarah Gertrude Millin to do the unusual. This South African novelist is one of the comparatively small band of writers in the world today who really count. In "God's Stepchildren" and again in "Mary Glenn" she gave us books that are genuinely big. In "An Artist in the Family," just published in America, she has increased the confidence of her readers that she will take her place in the first rank of the writers of this generation.

"An Artist in the Family" turns the tables on that numerous brood of novels that justify the eccentricities and vices or artists. Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpense" is the best possible example of the type. The artist abandons his family for his art. Well and good, Maugham seems to say. He was an artist and art is more important than family. He betrayed his friend. Again well and good — he was a genuine artist. And so all along the line. Every vice is justified by art. What of it if a man is a cad — provided he is genuinely an artist?

That is the general attitude of a large class of novels about artists. Sarah Gertrude Millim, away out in South Africa thousands of miles distant from literary cliques, had an opportunity to think this thing out for herself. She refused to accept ideas that were ready made, even though they had become standard in a hundred novels.

What of the people who suffer through the artist's eccentricities, she asked herself. They may conceivably have rights too. They may in their way be as worthy as the artist and as valuable to human society. Why not see how they feel and how the vices of the artist affects their lives?

So she took an average South African family in moderate circumstances — English colonials of some education and culture making only a reasonably comfortable living by orange growing. There are a father, mother and two sons. The older son is humdrum, married, and has an orange grove of his own. He and his parents are wholesome people of good sense and completely free from the artistic temperament.

But they worship that temperament in the younger son, Theo., who is the artist in the family. They skimp to send him to Orford. They deprive themselves of luxuries to provide them to the artist period. As a family they are always down before genius.

He repays them by wandering over Europe instead of going to school, and finally he comes home broken in health and saddles himself and a wife and her illegitimate child on the family for support while he paints.

The general layout of the story is about the same as all these novels about artists — with this difference that in all the others the artist is justified by the writer; in this case the tables are turned. The reader has a lively sense of sympathy for the family. Incidentally there is an ironical study of the race question in South Africa, a theme that enters into all Mrs. Millin's books. The artist is supposed to be broadminded and above the prejudices of ordinary people, like his family, about color — until he finds a nearly white and well educated colored man with his wife whom moreover he hates and despises. Then he becomes almost a raving maniac. His race prejudices are much deeper than his artistic instincts.

But that is incidental. The main current of the story shows how an artist in the family may be an unrelieved curse to good and worthy people. And Mrs. Millin does not make the mistake of making her artist a false alarm. That has been done often, thus begging the question. She does not positively say Theo. is a great artist but we get the impression he is the real thing. His artistic temperament at least is genuine and not a pose.

He merely succeeds in making himself wretched — which is normal for artists; but he makes life miserable for his family, which is something they do not deserve. And it ends in futility for all.

It is a searching study into human character by a novelist who can really write.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?

Editor Post-Crescent—The famous D. A. R. blacklist may be a fortunate incident if it clarifies the issue between so called nationalists and internationalists.

Nationalists fear being unprepared for the next war. Internationalists fear militarism in international affairs.

Every vanished nation was destroyed by its own militarism or that of an agressor.

Militarism in the past has settled international disputes or conflicting interests. Its method is war.

It would look upon any combination to restarin it as "one grand international conglomeration;" upon international law as entanglements; a World Court as a packed jury against it; upon power to enforce a decision of that court as robbing it of its sovereignty, and upon itself as one hundred percent patriotic.

Militarism is suspicious, fearful, proud, intollerant, and imperialistic.

Numbers, uniforms, arms, battleships however powerful, do not constitute militarism. Armies and navies defending or enforcing properly constituted and accepted law are essential to peace and order and to national existence. When enforcing the will or law of an individual, group, or nation upon those having had no part in making that will or law they are militarists.

Armies and navies give vitality to civil authority. As a national defense they temporarily hold back the flood waters of war but they do not dry up those waters. Armies and navies are not constructive: they are to destroy or check similar destructive forces while intelligence and good will build a world upon just laws that will eventually outlaw war.

"No man," said Lincoln, "is good enough to have absolute power." How about nations, our own included?"

All elimination of war has come by larger groups of people, states and nations coming voluntarily and remaining willingly under a common law for the common defense. This is Americanism. We are united that militarism shall have no part in our domestic affairs and because of that, war between our states is successfully and forever outlawed.

Our original Colonies lost no territory and retained all the sovereignty beneficial for the state and by uniting for the common defense have gained a thousand fold in surrendering the power to make war. By covenanting with other nations what would America sacrifice comparable to the inestimable gains of a warless world? America set the example, urged the idea upon other nations yet so far hesitates to share it with them.

If a type of patriotism, highly self-extoled, had prevailed from the beginning there could have been no states or nations. Loyalty to tribe or community would have suspected and feared an organized state. Such patriotism jealous for Colonial sovereignty opposed the adoption of the constitution of which now it claims to be the cheif defender.

A mistaken patriotism deceived such men as Lee, Jackson, and their companions in arms. They limited patriotism to their section, not considering or wrongly viewing the larger interests of nation and humanity of which they were a part; thus wrongly viewing the interest of the States to which they gave supreme devotion.

Zealous patriotism may be blind, blundering and destructive or intelligent, wise and beneficent. Its quality is determined by how it inspires one to think and act.

Militarism is a menace to every nation. It must continue wherever between nations there is no mutually accepted law and court to settle differences. Is it true patriotism that would have our country still rely exclusively on ancient mars, rather than seek a higher civilization for the benefit of our national and all others?

To share the spirit of the Prince of Peace is necessarily to be an internationalist. The highest patriotism is Christian—There shall be no overturning of nations until his law is established whose right it is to rule. Shall America co-operate in establishing that law? Surely this should be the faith, the aim, and the task of all Christendom.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

More and more American investigators are beginning to find important a study of the parasites that invade the bodies of human beings.

The division of medical sciences of the National Research Council has worked out an arrangement whereby the American Child Health Association will support an extended investigation of the way in which the common round worm attacks the child in the United States. This worm has been known as a parasite of man since the time of Aristotle.

When it invades the intestines it may grow to a length of 12 inches. It deposits an enormous number of eggs which pass out of the body and develop.

MOSTLY CHILDREN

The preliminary investigations made Prof. W. W. Cort, who has charge the department of helminthology, ich means worm investigation, in the Johns Hopkins University, indicates that the worms are primarily associated with children, and indeed that children are infested about five times as often as adults.

Recent studies seem to show that the worms may attack the lungs as well as the intestines and some physicians are of the opinion that strange lung conditions in children may be due to the passage of the worms through the lungs. The worms that attack children particularly are the whip-worm and the hookworm.

STUDIES ITS HABITS

Among the problems that the new commission plans to investigate, in addition to the manner in which the ascaris or round worm may attack the lungs, are the various factors in its development, the way in which children become infected, the influence of climate on the growth of the worms and on their spread and the exact role of the pig in disseminating the disease to the human body.

A form of infestation with worms of a similar type occurs in pigs, and many students of the subject think that the disease in the pig is similar to that in the human.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York — Years ago, when grandfathers wore whiskers and grandmothers hadn't learned how to peroxide their silver hair, there was a highly popoluar musical comedy called "The Belle fo Avenue A." Its scenes were peopled by rough girlies who had wandered over from the Bowery and by the colorful characters one found on this gay highway of New York's East Side.

It put Avenue A on the map, as surely as the Bowery was tatooed on the public mind by that bawdy old song: "The Bowery, the Bowery! They do such things and they say such things . . ."

* * *

Well, they're going to change the name of Avenue A to York Street, or something equally refined. That is, if somebody doesn't stop them. Not that this is likely to make much difference to someone reading his favorite newspaper in Colorado Missouri and way states. But it's going to make a lot of difference to the East Side. It's another sign of the influence over that section which the uptown belt is exerting.

Second Avenue in what was once admittedly the Ghetto, is the East Side And Avenue A is the Fifth Avenue of the melting pot section. Here are the snappiest shops to be found over that way. Here the daughters and granddaughters of Tony Spillani, Igor Yedinov and Moe Epstein buy their imitations of Fifth Avenue furs and the sons and grandsons of these same immigrants go for their sheikish silk shirts. Here you can still be yanked into a store by the street hawkers, though the curse of refinement has gradually come upon it. When Avenue A becomes York Street, or something equally dignified, it will join the self-conscious chorus that has been rising from the East River. It will have surrendered to the sons and daughters of the social Blue Book who have been tearing down the tattered tenements along that river and turning them into fashionable residences, Tudor Cities and such.

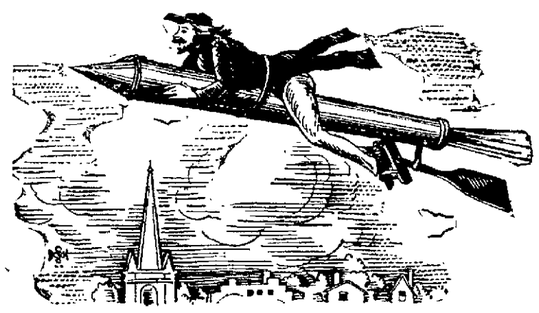

It is from this quarter doubtless that the movement rose to change Avenue A. Yet York Street will never fit that thoroughfare any more than Montmorency of Imogene would be fitting names for the children of immigrants who stroll up from Houston Street.

* * *

Philanthropy began the architectural change of the East Side. The unfitnesses of the miles of tenements was shouted by social workers until model tenements made their appearance. Bathtubs and tiled floors were introduced. As Will Irwin remarked. "The tenants approved of bathtubs and used them for coal bins." Then one of the Mrs. Vanderbilts moved to Sutton Place, once a run-down little spot by the East River. There after there was a scramble which developed into an ultra-ultra collection of modern apartments. Dwellers in Who's Who rapidly drove out the Pinskys and the Martinellis.

CUDAHY HEIRS GAIN POINT IN SUITS ON INHERITANCE TAXES

Would Recover $222,000 Taxes Paid on Gifts Made Before Death

Madison—(AP)—The principle that the actions of a soverign state are "to be characterized by a more scrupulous regard to justice and a higher morality than belong to ordinary transactions of individuals" is involved in reconsideration by the supreme court of the Cudahy tax case That characterization of the issue is given by Justice F. C. Eschweiler in an opinion dissenting from a finding of the court which held the Cudahy heirs might not recover thousands of dollars in inheritance tax paid by them.

The Cudahy heirs paid into Milwaukee county treasury $222,000 as inheritance tax on property given away by Mr. Cudahy within six years before his death. Payment was made under protest.

The supreme court of the United States has held unconstitutional Wisconsin's statute which imposes an inheritance tax on gifts given away within six years before death "in anticipation of death" Under that ruling, the Cudahy heirs attempted to collect the inheritance tax they had paid Milwaukee-co and the state, but the state supreme court ruled they could not recover because payment was made voluntarily To this opinion Justice Eschweiler has dissented

Briefs for reconsideration of the case are to be filed with the court by the heirs and the attorney general

Justice Eschweiler says in his dissenting opinion that when agents of the state accepted the inheritance tax money, which did not "n "law or justice belong to them," there arose an implied contract to repay

"It is well established that the United States government recognizes that an evident moral obligation is also a legal obligation, and that compensation is due one whose property is taken unlawfully by the government. Just why a state should not be bound by such a plain legal, as well as moral obligation, so clearly recognized by the federal government, I am at loss to understand.

"I think," his opinion says, "that in such matters the state, as sovereign, should set a proper standard and exemplar to the citizens, instead of asserting technical claims to hold on to property of its citizens, taken from them by agencies of the state, and by reason of the exercise of a temporary controlling authority for which it had no constitutional warrant."

Buick, Inventor Of Auto, Is Poor Man At Age Of 74

Detroit—David Buick, the man who founded the Buick Motor Company, is living in Detroit in obscurity and comparative poverty

His signature appears o the highways of every country on earth, gleaming on the radiators of more than 2,000,000 automobiles—but he cannot afford to own an auto himself

Nearly 74 years old, he is earning a meager living as an instructor in the Detroit School of Trades. He teaches men the mysteries of internal combustion engines, some of the men he has trained are, perhaps, working as mechanics in the mighty Buick factories. He gets down to the shop early and stays late and he says, "I've got to keep on working—or starve."

In all the collection of strange tales that are told in Detroit, the automobile capital, there is no tale so strange as the tale of David Buick

Finding him is a hard job He can't afford a telephone so his name isn't in the directory.

Yet this man, whose name is world famous, but whose purse is thin, is neither discouraged nor unhappy. His hair is gray, his body is slight, his face is deeply lined, but his eyes, that have seen the company he founded go on to greatness without him, are bright and cheerful. He does not s m defeated

MIGHT HAVE MADE MILLIONS

Defeated? Sitting in the dingy anteroom of the trade school talking to this man listening to him tell the story of his rise and his fall, hearing his own admission that the stock he once held would, if he owned it today, make him worth "many, many, many millions of dollars"—I soon lost the feeling of pity with which I entered The giants of the automobile world are true giants, that cannot be crushed, the David Buick, if you please, is one of them

He told me his story Up to a certain point it is a repetition of the familiar Detroit formula

Born in Scotland and brought to this country when a baby David Buick grew up in Detroit learned his trade, and as he entered middle life became a moderately prosperous maker of bathroom and plumbers' supplies and fittings He had a small factory outside the town, and it was in 1895 that he first turned his mind to the automobile

"I had one horse-drawn dray to take my goods to town, but I needed another," he said "I couldn't afford a new team, although I got the second dray on credit and I got to thinking about making an engine that would move the dray without horses"

Buick applied himself, and presently developed a valve-in-head motor There followed several years of experimentation. By 1900, Buick was convinced that there would be more money in making automobiles than in keeping on with his old business So he sold out, drove his car to Flint and aroused the interest of W. C Durant. Between them, the two organized the Buick Motor Company in 1903

OFTEN WORKED 18 HOURS A DAY

"Those were busy days that followed" said Buick "For seven years I didn't have a Sunday or a holiday off —not even Christmases or Fourth of July. I worked 12, 16, 18 hours some days—lots of days I tell you, the automobile business was a tough one in those days"

BAD BREAK

Although thousands of automobiles bearing his name are to be found on American highways, David Buick, the inventor, is in comparative poverty at Detroit and makes a living by teaching a class in a trades school He has no car of his own.

So far his story is like the other stories Detroit tells But in 1910 came disaster. David Buick's health gave ay completely—which, considering his working schedule is no wonder—and he was compelled to give up work and go to California

"I had a good block of stock," he said "The directors held a meeting the day I left. I was told that they'd voted to pay me my salary the rest of my life I thought I was all set But they only paid it for three years After that I never got a cent."

Then, faced by hard times, David Buick sold his stock. He never did find out the exact truth about his salary. Durant was forced out by financial troubles shortly after Buick quit, and Buick couldn't get it straightened out

He doesn't feel that he has been cheated or dealth with unjustly

"Just the breaks of the game" he said calmly. But that stock that I had — well, today it's worth many many, many millions of dollars"

The rest of his career was easily told There had been a variety of jobs, of all sorts expedients by which this aged dethroned motor king supported himself Now there was this —teaching men how to be mechanics and so on in a trade school

"FAIR WEATHER FRIENDS" FAIL

"You know he said I've been to practically every one of the friends of the old days—millionaires now, every one—and asked for a job and none of 'em had anything for me I wouldn't want to be president, or treasurer all I'd want would be security—a feeling that I was all set for the rest of my life Damn it I'm not after charity or pity I'm still strong and able But you know it's kind of hard for a man of my age to be uncertain about the future I've got to have a job"

This, too, was said without emotion

I looked about his little office On the door was a motto, No trails, no triumphs" Over the desk was another, "The first element of success a determination to succeed" I spoke about these signs and asked him what success might be anyway

Success," he said "is mostly hard It's work and it's stick-to-itiveness You've got to keep at it all the time —can't even look at a clock Why when we were getting the Buick Motor Company under way there wasn't an executive in the place who ever knew what time it was We worked until we had the day's job done and were ready for tomorrow, and then we went home—and not until then

"The chief thing is mental security That's all money is good for—to fix you so's you don't have to worry about your future"

He paused, and then he grinned

TRIES TO FORGET PAST

"Yet look at old Dave Buick," he said and for the first time his voice became vibrant with emotion

"I'm not worrying The failure is the man who stays down when he falls—the man who sits and worries about what happened yesterday, instead of jumping up and figuring what he's going to do today and tomorrow That's what success is — looking ahead to tomorrow and forgetting the past!"

Once again David Buick paused and looked away This was, he said the first interview he had given in more than 15 years, and I wondered it my own thought had transmitted itself to him—that [illegible] head of the Buick Motor Company [illegible] lodged in a luxurious office high above the city, would be much easier to find and much harder to talk to than an instructor in a trade school. Time was when every city editor in Detroit knew just where to find David Buick Today not one does.

"It's [illegible]" said David Buick softly. [illegible] Get that I'm not feeling sorry for myself Why should I? I've got to keep working, of course I haven't [illegible] thing but this job I'm not worrying I can take care of myself"

I thought [illegible] the moment that he was [illegible] to keep his courage up Now [illegible] The automobile city [illegible] a number of kings who [illegible] they [illegible] statue and [illegible] man [illegible] from [illegible] through the mists [illegible] day when he too, [illegible] one, is one of them

Your Question And Its Answer

By J. A. Panneck, D. C.
PALMER CHIROPRACTOR

QUESTION I am subject to spells of listlessness, poor appetite, nausea dull headache over the temples, skin yellow, urine dark and aching across the back Do you think I have Kidney trouble —R B

ANSWER. Your symptoms point to spinal impingement of nerves supplying the liver and kidneys. The yellow skin and dark urine indicate bile pigment. Bile is normally found in the liver and intestinal tract, but due to impinged nerves, it is often dammed back into the liver and must find an outlet through other tissues. It then becomes a poison and produces a general condition of sickness.

The kidneys will attempt to throw off this, but if the nerves supplying the kidneys are impinged, these organs of elimination cannot function properly An examination of your spine will readily and positively tell the seat of your trouble. You should have a thorough spinal examination

Question I am a woman forty years of age I am suffering from what my doctor calls Neuritis and stomach trouble I have been under his care about two years with no improvement and have decided to try Adjustments from you What is your opinion of my case —Mrs G M

ANSWER Many troubles arise from the single cause of nerves being pinched at the spine. Neuritis in the arm is simply an effect produced by pressure on a nerve at the backbone. Stomach trouble comes when stomach nerves cannot deliver energy to stomach muscles It is safe to say that ninety five per cent of human ills can be traced to spinal pressure on nerves This being so why try everything else first? Why not first of all look for a spinal cause and save time and suffering

The fact that I am asked these questions daily, is responsible for my Question and Answer column in the Post Crescent to better acquaint the public with Chiropractic, the new science that is bringing Health to thousands of incurable chronic patients, such that were classed as incurable by the old school of doctors.

Daughter Of Dickens Is In Seclusion

London —(AP)— Almost forgotten by the world, Mrs. Kate Perugini, 88, lives secluded in her Chelsea home dreaming of the verses she would like to write "if she were not the daughter of Charles Dickens."

For Kate Dickens has always wanted to write and her friends assert that she has a fine literary style of her own, but she has refrained because she feels that "a daughter ought not attempt to follow in the footsteps of such a father."

A sweet faced, silver haired old lady, she still bears traces of the beauty which Millais, Val Prinsep and other artist friends have portrayed on canvas.

She is herself an artist and noted for her portraiture of children, but she now refuses to be photographed or painted. As a girl she wished to go on the stage and was offered an engagement. Her father was against it and advised her to go on with her painting. While in her teens she married an artist named Collins and under his guidance pursued her studies After his death, she married the late C. E. Perguni, also an artist.

Their huuse is full of relics of Dickens. At the entrance of Mrs. Perugni's studio stands the historic table which her father used when giving readings and which he took with him on his American tour. He could not read, he said, unless he had that table before him.

A highly valued picture shows three angel heads. Dickens was attracted by it at a sale and Mrs. Perugini recalls how on one day he came home with a picture on the top of a cab, had it carried up to the room of herself and her sister and there hung it, saying, "that is something beautiful to be always before your eyes."

When Dickens suffered from fits of gloom and depression, Kate would attempt to solace him. She relates a curious premonition which occurred before his death. She and her sister had left "Gadshill," the Dickens home to go on a visit to London. At the railway station, Kate said:

"I must go back and speak to father again."

When she reached the house she found him pacing the room in distress. At sight of her, he brightened up, held out his arms and clasped her to him. After a long embrace she returned to the station and went on her journey. Next day she received word of his death.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST— Halves of grape fruit, cereal, cream, breakfast spinach, bran and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Creamed finnan haddie on toast, new cabbage in lemon juice, maple tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Veal pot roast, boiled potatoes, scalloped tomatoes, celery and radishes, rhubarb pie, milk, coffee.

A veal pot roast is never dry and "chippy" as an ordinary oven roast is apt to be. After evenly searing the surface of the meat the heat should be reduced to the minimum and about 4 tablespoonfuls of boiling water added. This insures against burning and provides sufficient moisture.

CREAMED FINNAN HADDIE

One and one half cups flaked finnan haddie, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 1-2 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 egg yolk, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-3 cup chopped green pepper.

Wash fish well, cover with boiling water and simmer just below the boiling point for ten minutes. Drain and remove all skin and bones Separate into flakes. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and add Worcestershire sauce, minced persley and chopper pepper. Heat thoroughly and pur slowly onto egg yolk slightly beaten. Beat with egg beater and add prepared finnan haddie. Heat over hot water but do not let boil. Serve on square of hot buttered toast.

UNIFORMS TO BE WORN AT SELECT GIRLS' SCHOOL

Detroit —(AP)— It's goodbye frills for the 350 girls attending the Liggett private school here.

Going on the theory that girl's minds are distracted from their studies by their frocks, the management has ordered the wearing of regulation attire.

For warm weather, the girls will wear uniforms made of India silk in navy blue. In the winter, the dresses will be made of wool and may be worn in red, green, blue and brown. Both models will be trimmed with white pique collars and cuffs. Skirts must be two inches below the knee. Woolen hose are requested for winter wear.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

AT BOWLING all the Tinymites had sure presented funny sights, but 'course it all was new to them so they were not to blame. They knew they had a lot to learn when each had finished with his turn, so Scouty to the two dwarfs said, "We'll watch you bowl a game."

"All right" one of the dwarfs replied, "You Tinymites just stand aside while we two have a contest just to see who bowls the best." So on the ground the whole bunch sat and Clowny waved his little hat, and shortly, in his cheering, he was joined by all the rest .

The bowling balls crashed here and there, and pins flew high up in the air. Of course this made a lot of noise which echoed all around Poor Clowny held his ears, and said, "Oh, gee! That seems to shake my head I wish that bowling was a game that didn't make a sound"

But, both the dwarfs kept at their fun. They'd grab a ball, and then they'd run. "I'm sorry," shouted one of them, 'if this queer game annoys. But you can surely realize that everyone needs exercise. This is the way we get it. Bowling's one of our real joys"

Just then somebody yelled. "Hey! Hey! You dwarfs will have to stop your play. You're ruining my garden 'cause you shake the country 'round. It seems to me you ought to know that I can't make my flowers grow. The noise you're making scares them and they stay down in the ground."

The Tinies looked around. A man came running o'er the ground He waved a rake quite wildly, and the Tinies heard him say, "Get out of here or I'll get mad, and if I do, 'twill be too bad." The Tinies didn't move, but both the dwarfs soon ran away.

(The Tinymites get a wheelbarrow ride in the next story.)

WOMEN PREXIES IN MANY COLLEGES

Washington —(AP)— One hundred per cent increase in the number of women college presidents in the past 12 years has been noted by the U. S. Bureau of Education. In its new educational directory, the bureau lists 57 women college and university presidents in office in 1928.

The directory for 12 years ago lists but 24 women college executives and most of them were heads of women's seminaries and finishing schools that gave a college degree. Almost all the large eastern women's colleges now are presided over by women executives.

This year's list shows that there are seven women in the position of state superintendent of public instruction, 40 who are city superintendents of schools and 900 who are county or district superintendents of schools. The number of women county superintendents has doubled in the past 12 years. There is only one state that does not have at least one woman school executive.

There is one woman head of a division of the bureau of education, one who heads a law school and one a school of medicine.

While many of the schools of theology, dentistry, pharmacy and veterinary medicine have women on their faculties, none has a woman as chief executive.

Jaded Appetites Need Tempting Crisp Salads

BY SISTER MARY

The alads that bloom in the spring tra-la do much to whet jaded appetites. 'Twould seem that in no other department of cookery have there been so many delightful innovations and intriguing combinations. We have come far from the potato and chicken salads of our grandmothers' adventures in the art.

DECORATIVE SALADS

The salad of today can be so attractive and colorful that is one of the most important features of luncheon or dinner.

But even the most artful salad in the world can be spoiled and made tasteless by carelessly prepared greens. No matter whether the salad plant is used as a garnish or actually forms the main part of the dish the same care must be used in its preparation. Lettuce, endive, romaine, watercress — all of these greens require the same attention.

HAVE GREENS CRISP

As soon as the lettuce or salad plant comes from the market, put it into a large panful of cold water to freshen. Edges of leaves that are bruised beyond revival in water should be clipped off with the kitchen shears. Wash through several waters, holding each leaf under running water at a sharp angle. Let the washed greens stand in cold water to completely cover until crisp. Then drain carefully and wrap in a soft towel. Place on ice until needed. The moisture that inevitably clings to the leaves will be absorbed by the cloth and the dampness will keep the lettuce deliciously crisp.

If there is not time for this leisurely chilling and drying, put the greens after washing and crisping into a large square of cheesecloth. Gather corners loosely in a knot, allowing plenty of room for the greens and swing the bundle vigorously, making twelve or fifteen evolutions at arm's length. There are wire baskets for drying lettuce on the market that are very much worth while, but the calisthenics with the cheesecloth square effect the same results.

The condition of the meat, vegetable or fruit used in the salad is the next consideration.

Uncooked vegetables should be crisp and tender, cut in dice or shreds convenient to eat. Cooked vegetables should be firm and tender and cut in neat, uniform size. Mushy, shapeless pieces are far from attractive.

CUT INGREDIENTS CAREFULLY

Meat should be free from fat, bone, skin or gristle and cut in neat dice, not too small but of a size that requires no cutting in the finished salad.

Fish should be free from bones, skin and fat and broken into large flakes or cut as needed.

Never let greens stand with a French dressing over them before serving, as they will be sure to wilt. Any dressing will cause the green salad plant to wilt after a reasonable length of time but the acid of a French dressing acts more directly than that of a dressing made with eggs.

When a French dressing is used, the salad should be mixed at the table or the dressing passed for each person to help himself. In mixing a salad at the table the bowl must be large enough to allow thorough mixing of the leaves and must be well chilled. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, then pour over oil, lifting and "tossing" with two forks until each leaf is coated. Then add vinegar or lemon juice. If the vinegar is poured over the greens first, the oil will not stick to the wet leaves. Calculate 1 tablespoonful of oil with 1-2 as much or 1 teaspoon lemon juice for each person to be served.

"MARINATED" VEGETABLES

Meats and vegetables used in salad combinations usually should be allowed to stand in a French dressing for an hour before mixing to serve. This process is known as "marinating" and adds to the richness and flavor of the salad.

The following combinations are rather unusual and may suggest others to you:

Sweetbread and mushroom salad. Arrange on crisp lettuce, garnish with strips of pimento. Moisten with mayonnaise. A luncheon or supper salad.

Potatoes, new beets, sardines and hard cooked eggs. Arrange on cress and moisten with mayonnaise. Luncheon or supper salad.

FOR DINNER, FOR SUPPER

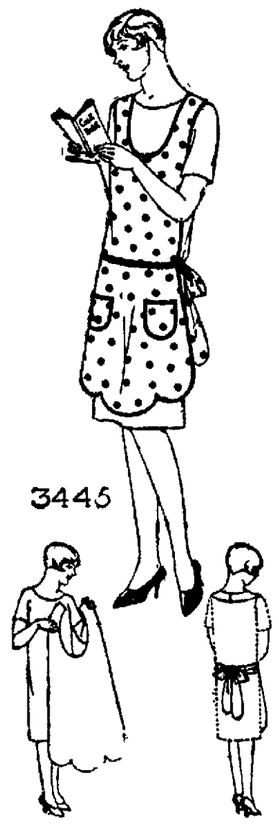

Ham, potato and celery salad. Arrange on curly endive, moisten with mayonnaise and garnish with hard cooked eggs. Luncheon salad.

Jellied salad of pineapple and cucumber. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Garnish with chopped nuts. A combination dinner salad taking the place of desert as well as supplying the salad course.

Prune and cheese salad. Arrange on French endive and serve with French dressing. A dinner salad.

MARYE and "MOM" Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

My dear Marye:

I think you are very foolish to believe that memories of past loves are treasures. You shouldn't be thinking of any man but your husband. And comparing him with a former sweetheart whom you saw only under favorable circumstances is most unfair. It can easily grow into a habit that will get beyond your control and become a serious detriment to your happiness.

And surely you must know that as the novelty of marriage wears off comradeship takes its place. You aren't old enough to appreciate what a wonderful blessing true comradeship is, Marye dear, but I hope you will not remain blind to it as long as most people do.

It comes about so naturally between married couples and is so taken for granted that it is rarely appreciated at its real worth. It is sweet to have someone in whom you can confide with perfect trust, someone you can depend upon as a companion.

There will be black moments in your marriage, I suppose, when the commonplace features of it disappoint you, but if you will weigh the happier side against the other you will stop sighing for past romances.

I know you're never been lonely, that you didn't need marriage to provide a companion. You were very fortunate in having a great many friends, but if you hadn't married you would have found, as you grow older, that you lacked someone you could depend upon at practically all times. Friends have a way of failing us oftener than the one we are married to. That is only natural as their lives are not bound up with ours.

But sometimes this constant companionship becomes a bore to those who do not value it. I feel sorry for such persons as they are missing far more than they know in failing to see that in most cases they would be incomplete if they were separated from husband or wife.

I know I wouldn't trade the bond that exists between your father and myself for all the thrills anyone can get from remembering old lovers. If you need that sort of thing to help you over the rough spots of marriage it is because you are overlooking the greatest privilege of being married.

Don't try to hang on to the glamour of the honeymoon, Marye, or let yourself be blinded by little offenses to your esthetic taste. There's something more solid to a happy marriage. Companionship. But some people never appreciate it. I hope you will not be one of them.

Dearest love
MOM

SOCIETY MATRON TRAP CHAMPION

MRS. THOMAS D. SNOWDEN

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)— Champion trap-shot of Tennessee and a former Tri-State titleholder within three years after she adopted the sport is the record of Mrs. Thomas D. Snowden, young Memphis society matron.

"When I married about three years ago, I was old-fashioned enough to want to be with my husband, who is an enthusiastic sportsman, as much as possible, so in order to join him in the fields and at the targets I made shooting my hobby," she explains.

Now bridge games, luncheons, teas and other social affairs are foregone for the thrill of the target range. Many a morning finds her up at four o'clock, kneeling in marshes in bitter cold weather, waiting to bang away at ducks.

In 1926, shortly after she began shooting, Mrs. Snowden won the Tri-State title ,covering Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi. Last year, she lost the championship, but during the spring won the state honors, shooting with a borrowed gun after her own got out of order. This June she will both defend her title and again seek the Tri-State championship when the two meets are held here.

Mrs. Snowden has a record of 190 out of 200 clay pigeons and of 1,7000 registered targets she broke 1,532 in 1927 for an average better than 90. The national championship shoot may find her as a contender.

Happiness Is Child's Real Need

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I AM MOVED to ecstatic tears over the short sensible article of Mrs. Thusnelda Crane about her unusual daughter Nathalia, child poetess of fourteen who is being much discussed.

She corroborates what I have preached for years, namely, that the chief thing in bringing up children is to make them happy.

No child can grow properly unless he is happy, no child can develop mentally unless he is happy. Unless he is happy he cannot develop personality, individuality, or efficiency.

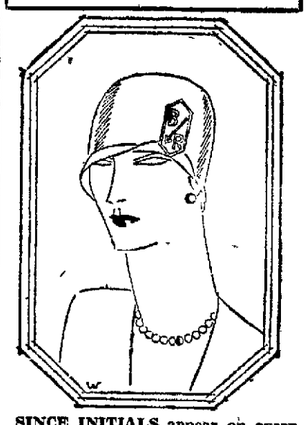

Happiness does not depend on riches. It does not follow that a child need go to the movies five nights a week, live on ice cream sodas, have fine clothes and a pocketful of spending money.

But most unhappiness in children is not caused by lack of these things as by over-disciplining. As a rule children are either over-disciplined or under-disciplined, and as a result of the latter, scolded to death. Scolding and whippings are not discipline.

A few rules, a little sensible explanation as to why these rules must be obeyed, and then freedom! As little coercion as possible, more cooperation between parents and child, sympathy and understanding, fresh air, good food! All the "psychological programs" in the world, as Mrs. Crane calls them, cannot come up to this.

It is so simple. It is so easy. Why cannot parents see that over-discipline is worse than no discipline. Obedience will be natural for a child who feels that he is being treated justly. It isn't the "revolt" of young people nowadays due to ignorance on the part of parents?

Urge Kahler As President Of District

THE good young people can do for their church through Sunday schools, Bible studies and other activities was stressed by G. Chris Barth, director of Concordia college, Milwaukee, in an address at the rally of the Fox River Valley zone of Walther leagues at St. Paul church here Sunday afternoon. More than 300 young people from Fox river valley cities attended the meeting.

Mr. Barth's address was on the subject, How Can a Walther League Serve its church? Morning services were conducted by F. M. Brandt, pastor of St. Paul church. The St. Paul Young Peoples society was host to the valley zone.

Three Appleton and two Oshkosh men were named on a slate of candidates for district offices by the zone members. Each zone in the Oshkosh district nominates candidates for district officers and they will be voted on at the district meeting in Oshkosh on May 12 and 13.

Those elected here were: Arthur Kahler, Mount Olive church, Appleton, president; Raymond Nehls, St. Paul church, Appleton, vice president; Verna Schreiber, Trinity church, Oshkosh, secretary; Carl Voecks, St. Paul church, Appleton, treasurer; the Rev. J. E. Elbert, Trinity church, Oshkosh, pastor.

Plans are being made, according to president Mr. Kahler of the valley zone for bringing the 1929 district league convention to Appleton.

The team entered by the Olive branch Junior Walter league of Mount Olive church in the track and field meet Sunday evening in connection with the zone meeting, won first place and received a silver loving cup. Mayville Walther league and Olive branch, Senior Walther league of Appleton were tied for second place with 17 points each.

Cities represented at the meeting were Oshkosh, Berlin, Neenah, Horicon, Mayville, Waupun, Coloma and Poy Sippi.

ALUMNI PROM TO BE REGULAR SCHOOL AFFAIR

The success of the first alumni prom given Saturday night by the Appleton high school class of 1927 for alumni of the high school, in the Crystal room of the Conway hotel, has established the prom as an annual affair, members of the class have announced.

Eighty couples attended the dancing party which was featured by novel colored lighting effects. Miss Agatha Gossens and William Lee, president of the class of 1927 led the grand march for which the high school song, Alma Mater, was played. A program of dance music was played from 8 to 12 o'clock by Phil King's Badgers, an orchestra composed of University of Wisconsin men.

Patrons and patronesses for the prom were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Helble, Mr. and Mrs. John Roach, Mr. and Mrs. George Dame, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. E. Voight, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sylvester. Orville Myse and Alex Manier were members of the committee which made the arrangements.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

The Ladies Aid society of Memorial Presbyterian church will meet at the home of Mrs. E. W. Shannon, 844 E. South-st, at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon. Assistant hostesses at the meeting, which will be both business and social in nature, will be Mrs. Max Boehm, Mrs. G. A. Caesar and Mrs. George Wood.

The monthly meeting of the Delta Gamma alumni will be held at 7:15 Monday evening at the chapter rooms on E. College-ave. Routine business will be discussed.

Mrs. H. S. Gatley, 116 N. Drew-st. will be hostess to the St. Agnes Guild of All Saints Episcopal church at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon. This will be the monthly business meeting.

Mrs. E. A. Albrecht, 1109 N. Superior-st, will be hostess to the circle of First English Lutheran church of which Mrs. Charles Hueseman is captain, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The meeting will be both business and social.

CLUB MEETINGS

La Boheme will be the opera studied at the meeting of the General Reviw club at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer O'Keefe, N. Walnut-st. Mrs. F. Jentz, Jr. will present the program.

The regular monthly meeting of Delta Gamma alumnae association at 7:15 Tuesday evening at the chapter rooms at 726 E. College-ave. Routine business will be discussed.

Th Parent-Teachers association of the Badger school will hold a monthly meeting Friday evening at the school. A dancing party for members and friends will follow the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. M. Gayhart are in charge of the party.

Regular business will be discussed at the meeting of Ladies Aid society of St. Joseph church at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at St. Joseph hall. Cards and a social will follow the business session.

AUTOIST PAYS $1 FOR PARKING CAR IN ALLEY

John Stark, 1827 N. Oneida-st, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday morning when he pleaded guilty of parking his automobile in alley. Stark was arrested by Officer Gus Hersekorn about 8:30 Saturday night after he parked his machine in the alley between N. Appleton and N. Superior-st.

COMING FOR MUSICAL FESTIVAL

Jeanette Vreeland, soprano, will be one of the five soloists for the Appleton May Music Festival on May 13 and 14 at Lawrence Memorial chapel. She will be the soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted by Henri Verbrugghen, on Monday evening and also will sing solo parts in the first presentation of the festival, the oratorio, "Elijah," which will be given by the Minneapolis symphony, and the Schola Cantorum of Lawrence college, composed of 175 voices. Dean Carl J. Waterman will be the musical director.

Miss Vreeland is one of the best known singers among younger American sopranos. Without the aid of the usual press agent and pages of advertising ordinarily considered necessary for new artists, she filled over 30 engagements in oratorios, recitals and festivals in her first season. Her success has made her outstanding as a soprano of unusual merit and ability.

LADY EAGLES TAKE IN CLASS OF CANDIDATES

A class of 107 candidates was initiated into the newly organized Ladies Auxiliary of Eagles Friday night at Eagle hall. Mrs. John S. Parry of Kansas City, Mo. assisted by the Oshkosh officers and the Oshkosh drill team instituted the lodge.

Election of officers wsa followed by installation. Officers elected and installed were Junior past president, Mrs. Ida Brandt; president, Mrs. Paul Schroeder; vice president, Mrs. William C. Felton; chaplain, Mrs. Bernard Spaay; secretary, Mrs. Frank Huntz; treasurer, Mrs J. MURDERER OF WIFE ATTENDS FUNERAL

Invalid Killed Mate Because She Cared for Him "Like a Baby"

Miami, Fla.—(AP)— Bert Campbell, 56-year old invalid and former Wisconsin resident, who killed his wife because she cared for him "like a baby" attended her funeral Saturday under police escort.

He wanted to see, he told police, that she got a "decent burial."

Sitting in a wheel chair without which he has been unable to move for 14 years Campbell, formerly of Evansville, Wis, maintained the same dispassionate claim at his wife's funeral that he has shown since he telephoned that he had slain his wife and nurse

"I intended to commit suicide but didn't have the courage," he said in speaking of his act. "She pitied me. Her love was a mother love and she cared for me like a baby. She did not care for me in any other sense however and I couldn't live with her. I stood it as long as I could."

Campbell asked that his two daughters by a previous marriage be kept in ignorance of his crime.

He is held on a charge of murder.

STAUNCH OLD TUG "WOLF" MAKES LAST TRIP DOWN RIVER

Veteran Skipper Regrets to Give Up Tug He Commanded for Eight Years

Kaukauna—This week will mark the passing from the Fox river one of its most familiar sights, for the United States tug Wolf is to be discarded for the new and up to date U. S. tug Neenah. The Wolf, new resting below the fifth lock, will go down river for the last time the latter part of the week. It will go to Green Bay where its equipment will be transferred to the recently constructed Neenah.

Captain G. C. Kinsman of Fremont, master of the Wolf, will take over the new steel tug and the old side wheeler will be towed back to Kaukauna where it will be sold to the highest bidder.

The trip down river will not be a pleasant one for Captain Kinsman who has been with the Wolf since 1920. "I will hate to see her go, she was a fine old ship, the captain said. "They tell me the Neenah is more modern and up to date but nevertheless I hate to see the passing of the old Wolf. It means something when a man knows his ship and I surely know just what the Wolf will do. I'm taking over a new ship one don't know a thing about and, well, it's a new ship the Wolf is steam operated and there is nothing like steam when you want to move This new boat uses oil for fuel in its Kolemberg semi-deisel engines and although they may claim it to be great there is nothing like steam When we go down river it will mark the passing of one of the best tugs the Fox river has ever seen."

Captain Kinsman is a native of Fremont. His boyhood was spent on the Wolf river and when 13 years of age he shipped as cabin boy on one of the passenger boats plying the Fox and Wolf rivers at that time. This first boat was the old sidewheeler O. B. Reed which was sold in 1893 at Toledo, O. Now the captain is fifty years of age and he still is on the river. In 1906 he was made mate of the Lefevre of Oshkosh, a sidewheel passenger boat, and when the boat was sold to the Johnson Island Resort Co. at Sandusky, O. he went with it only to return a short time later to the Fox river.

His first boat as master was the Dixie, a sternwheeler. This was in 1908. Other ships which he commanded were the R. C. Brown of the Cook and Brown Line of Oshkosh and the Paul L. of the Oshkosh Tusting line.

The tug Wolf is 87 feet long and 30 feet wide and the Neenah will be shorter and wider. The new tug was built at Kewaunee and was to have been delivered last week but it was discovered that the insurance on the boat did not expire until May 11 so the delivery date was delayed until this week. The semi-deisel engines were built by the Kolemberg Engine works at Two Rivers. It will not be as large as the Menasha which replaced the tug Fox about a year ago. The Menasha was built at Duluth, Minn. and until it was rebuilt last summer at Kewaunee was distinctly without lines. As the captain remarks, "until that time it could only wobble along." At Kewaunee it was lengthened and other major improvements made. The Wolfe and Fox were built side by side at Oshkosh in 1920 by George D. Ryan.

The Fox was primarily built as quarter ship for officers while the Wolf was built for duty as a tug. The former is at Kaukauna at the present time where it being made into a cabin boat. All of the machinery has been removed and sold to a Green Bay building wrecking company. Sleeping quarters have been built on it for 26 men. It will retain its name Fox but will be used in the Milwaukee district under Co. Christoval. All modern equipment has been placed in it.

TO REPRESENT US IN CHINA

Miss Frances Elizabeth Willis of Memphis, Tenn., who goes to represent the United States as vice consul in Valparaiso, Chile, early in May, thinks extension of foreign trade in South America is one of our great needs. Miss Willis, former instructor in political science at Vassar College, is the third woman to be accredited a member of the American foreign diplomatic service.

Platform Al Smith Will Support Is Not Mentioned

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Because Governor Al Smith has not yet expressed himself publicly on the national issues, it is worth while to look at the platform which he agreed to support after it had been adopted by the Democratic state nominating convention in South Dakota.

It is most improbable that Smith hadn't carefully scrutinized it in advance. State law required that he promise to adhere to it.

W. G. McAdoo, endorsed by the South Dakota nominating convention in 1924, had himself been allowed to write the platform which he "accepted." It isn't likely that Smith's friends were any stingier with their candidate.

As platforms go, it's not so bad. It is quite likely that all its points will be embodied in the Democratic platform framed at Houston.

It declares for the rights of man as against the rights of wealth and its most urgent recommendation is on behalf of agriculture which "must be placed on a parity with industry" by "immediate adjustments in our economic system." Certainly, Smith's best policy is to make such a bid for the farm vote.

The next four points declare against excessively high tariffs religious discrimination in public life, federal encroachment on state rights and governmental invasion of individual rights.

Imperialistic ventures against small nations are denounced, which is interesting for the fact that Smith will have to speak up on his opinion of our record in Nicaragua and Haiti. "Honest and effective enforcement of all law" as demanded by this platform will surely be echoed by Smith later on.

The demands for efforts for world peace, honest government, a fair deal for labor and a national policy for practical idealism are not exactly sensational, but the twelfth plank demanding conservation of water power resources and "a policy of watchful vigilance with reference to the power trust" squares with Smith's policy in New York and is one item on which the party might be divided, considering the numerous votes by southern senators against the Walsh resolution to investigate the "trust."

Smith will elaborate on that program, but he probably won't go much further. He might make more enemies among Democrats— and he can't afford to make many more. Already he is assured of more enemies within his own party than any man who has been a candidate for the presidency for many years back.

Some hopeful optimists believe that small groups of powerful politicians who have dominated conventions in the past won't be able to dictate the party nominations this June as they would like. They base this on the fact that the country now knows Harding was nominated in 1920 in a "smoke-filled hotel room" and that the "people" will insist this year that everything be conducted right out in the open.

It is true there were administration scandals subsequent to the Harding election, but that method of nomination has been going on for years. In 1844 a convention was so thoroughly corrupted in advance that Calhoun refused to be a candidate. In 1873, the Marquis de Chambrun, who had studied our institutions, wrote concerning nominating conventions:

"Under this regime it is not really the association that governs, but the most insignificant minority that rules the majority." And again, "It is not to be wondered that a handful of adroit managers do all the work, and that the convention generally does nothing more than give expression to their will."

DECAY OF CONCRETE STUDIED BY EXPERTS

Columbia University Engineers Want to Know Cause of Deterioration

New York—(AP)—An investigation of the deterioration of concrete masonry is in progress in the testing laboratories of the civil engineering department of Columbia university.

The tests, still incomplete after two years of study, indicate that improper construction and workmanship are among the most important factors in the disintegration of concrete, says Prof. A H. Beyer, who is in charge of the laboratories.

"The whole benomenon of concrete deterioration is extremely complex," Professor Beyer asserts. "In some pieces of construction concrete is affected quite rapidly, while in others under almost identical conditions, its disintegration with time is almost negligible No progress can be made against such deterioration until the underlying causes ahe thoroughly understood.

"Masonry which stands in water, such as bridge abutments and piers is particularly susceptible to serious wear, whether the water is fresh or salt and whether the climate is tropical or temperate."

David L. Snader, professor of structural engineering at Stevens Institute of Technology and a grad uate student at Columbia, is making the tests in collaboration with Prof Roy J. Colony, a Columbia geologist Their materials are samples of masonry taken from culverts, abutments, walls and other structures which have deteriorated so far as to necessitate repairs. Miscroscopic and x-ray examinations of these pieces are made by the scientists.

HARDY NORSEMAN, 82, ENJOYS FRIGID BATH

Berlin—(AP)—At the age of 82 H Dunker former Senator of Hamburg, finds a daily plunge into the North Sea both appropriate and invigorating The robust octogenarian keeps up this spartan habit at Westerland on Sylt from early spring until the beginning of fall, regardless of wind or temperature, which in this latitude are often during the month of September of the nippiest

But he has a rival In the 80 year old Frau Professor Bernhard of Berlin who not to be outdone by mere man, also takes her dip and swim in the Westerland surf every day throughout the summer and up to October and, what is more, advertises the fact that she has done so every year ever since she first came to Westerland 50 years ago.

Washington Crowded With Tourists; Hotels Filled

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—If you haven't been in Washington during these last few weeks, where on earth were you? Everyone alse has been here. Perhaps you stayed home because there were no hotel resevations to be had. Thousands found that out.

The town has teemed with tourists. All day long corridors of the Capitol are thronged with parties of them, being lectured by guides.

Everyone goes to the Capitol. According to the sight-seeing bus impresarios, the next popular places are the White House, Bureau of Engraving, Lincoln Memorial, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Washington Monument.

The Bureau of Engraving is where the money is made, hence its rank in popular interest alongside the White House and Capitol. Once the Monument was the most popular point and most visitors wanted to make the 555-foot trip to the top. Now they're content to look at it.

According to bus chaperones these are three stock questions:

Who lives in the White House? Many persons think Coolidge sleeps in the Capitol.

What's the name of the Unknown Soldier's mother—it's so hard to remember.

And at Mount Vernon: Where's the cherry tree Washington was supposed to have chopped down?

One of the more important candidates who shared in the recent victory of comparatively respectable politics in Illinois was in Washington a day or two ago.

"Pineapples elected us," he said. "Just pineapples. When they started throwing pineapples we stopped worrying.

It's seldom an American congressman gets any better treatment for a bill in the parliament of another government than he gets in Washington.

But La Guardia of New York introduced a bill to allow the people of Porto Rico to elect their own governor instead of being forced to accept a presidential appointee.

Our own Congress probably will pay little attention to the bill, as President Coolidge opposes Porto Rican government but both houses of the Porto Rican congress "passed" it unanimously.

On the same day the House held Sabbath memorial services for the late Congressman William Magee of New York and the late Senator A. A. Jones of New Mexico. The record shows that seven congressman quoted poetry in paying their tribute, including lines from Bryant's "Thanatopsis" and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

It's now or never for most of the Republican presidential candidates. Already, Secretary of Commerce Hoover's comparative youth is being urged by his supporters as one reason why he should be the choice—and the age of the others a factor of unavailability. Four years hence the nomination of any of them but Hoover—unless he were then president—would be practically out of the question.

If nominated and elected, Hoover would be only 54, and 58 on March 4, 1933. But Lowden and Curtis will be 72 on that date, Dawes 67, Watson 68 and Hughes 70. Only three presidents over 61 have been inaugurated, and two died in office.

One might suppose that there would be a certain sentiment in the party to give one of these elderly gentlemen, all with long records of party service, a nomination while there is yet time.

But sentiment flies out of the window when politics comes in the door. If any of them is nominated at Kansas City, sentiment will be the absent factor.

TIPS ARE SOLE WAGES OF FRENCH WAITERS

Paris—(AP)—Waiters in many of the large cafes of France pay for the privilege of working, instead of being paid by the proprietors of the houses which supposedly employ them.

Their earnings come from tips. Americans are supposed to be generous tippers, and posts in cafes patronized by Americans are sought by the waiters.

Before the war, accordnig to one waiter in a large cafe near the Opera, waiters paid a fixed sum for "the apron." It was a dollar and was admittedly a charge for the privilege of extracting tips from the customers.

"Now," the waiter said, "our employers have become more refined. The charge ranges from one dollar to a dollar and a half a day, but it is now set down as 'laundry.'"

Waiters average fro m$2.50 to $4 a day in tips, according to the restaurant in which they work.

THINK "GAY" TOKIO WOULD LURE TOURISTS

Toyko—(AP)—Somthing ought to be done to pep up night life in Toyko, if the Japanese expect to get a real share of American tourist money that is now going to Europe. So thinks the Japan Times, which calles Toyko a "dead town" in so far as amusements appealing to tourists are concerned.

In fact there is no night life in Toyko. There are scenic delights and beautiful temples, but no cabarets, and even at to Imperial hotel dances must end at 10 p. m.

"We feel it is a case of eating your cake and having it too," laments the Times. "Either open up the country and make it a bit gayer for the bored traveller, and let our youth look after their own morals, or keep the Puritanic lid on Toyko and let France and Italy get the bulk of the tourist travel."

Experts fro mthe United States are helping Ecuador untangle its financial problems.

Many apartments being constructed in Sicily have modern bathrooms, but no arrangements for heating water.

Hawaii had more visitors during the past winter than in any previous tourist season.

How the Seiberling Tire Protection Service Works

When you purchase a Seiberling All-Tread, for passenger car use, the Seiberling dealer registers the tire with the Seiberling Protected Service Corp., Akron, Ohio, who issue direct to you your Certificate of Protection on that tire.

If your Protected Seiberling is injured within twelve months after purchase, call on any Seiberling dealer in the United States, present your tire and Certificate of Protection. He will repair your tire without charge, or if the tire is injured beyond repair, will replace it with a new Seiberling for a sum based on the number of months you have run the old tire.

Your Seiberling dealer includes also, under this plan, a free monthly inspection service which will go far to prevent tire trouble with its resulting inconvenience.

INVITE BUTTE DES MORTS GOLFERS TO RIVERVIEW LINKS

Butte des Morts golfers chafing under the restraint of cold wet weather gave a whoop of delight Monday when it was learned that directors of Riverview Country club offered to allow them to play on Riverview course, free of charge, until Butte des Morts is dry enough to permit play.

The only consideration is that Butte des Morts members show their membership cards and register at the caddy house.

Riverview course was opened over the weekend for play on temporary greens. The course is said to be in good condition.

Butte des Morts will not be open until the fairways dry out, it was said Saturday. Several fairways still are very soggy and it is feared they will be seriously damaged if play is permitted on them now.

The practice course is open, however, and a number of eager golfers were out Saturday and Sunday taking the kinks out of winter-tangled muscles.

STAGE And SCREEN

"CHICAGO"

Since its production on the stage in December, 1925, until its adaptation to the screen as a special De Mille studio production for Pathe, "Chicago" has experienced as many sensational changes as any theatrical production in the past decade.

Written by Maurine Watkins as a comedy based on her observationss while a "sob-sister" reporter in the Illinois metropolis, "Chicago" became a stage sensation directly after its premiere in the Music Box Theatre in New York, where it recorded overwhelming business for six months.

Its daring exposture of the tactics applied by officials in hippodroming murder trials stirred up heated controversies wherever the play was presented, and in many centers censorship was threatened by the forces upon whom the scathing sarcasm reflected.

The adroit treatment of the subject by Miss Watkins saved it from the knife of censors, and when it scored a tremendous hit in the city of its birth hostility toward it turned to praise, and it continued to score heavily wherever offered.

Almost simultaneously with its original showing Cecil B. De Mille, perceiving the screen possibilities, started negotiations for the film rights. These obtained, he undertook a production calculated to surpass the stage offering, and carefully improvised each sequence. The picture was directed by Frank Urson.

For the role of Roxie Hart, Mr. De Mille selected Phyllis Haver, and the enlarged role of the husband went to Victor Varconi. Others important in the cast are Robert Edeson, T. Roy Barnes, Julia Faye, Virginia Bradford and May Robson.

GEORGE LEWIS IN STELLAR CAST OF 'WE AMERICANS'

George Lewis, famous as America's most typical "Collegian" enacts one of the prominent dramatic roles in Universal's special, "We Americans," which opened at Fischers Appleton Theatre today.

Lewis is the boy who first stepped into fame by his powerful characterization in "His People." It is especially fitting that his most recent role that in "We Americans," should be under the direction of Edward Sloman, the man who, two years ago, elevated him from the extra ranks to featured roles.

Lewis, after "His People," played the starring role in Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s series, "The Collegians," which won him world-wide fame.

The young star was born in Mexico City and came to San Diego, California, when his father's diplomatic mission was completed. In San Diego, George became the most famous athlete in the history of Coronado High School and was elected president of the student body in his senior year. Immediately after his graduation he set out to realize his ambition via the screen. After two years as an unknown extra he was discovered. Since then he has been featured in "The Old Soak," "Honeymoon Flats," "13 Washington Square," and "Give and Take."

The other members of the cast of "We Americans" are George Sidney, Patsy Ruth Miller, Eddie Phillips, Beryl Mercer, John Boles, Albert Gran, Daisy Belmore, Kathlyn Williams, Edward Martindel, Josephine Dunn, and many others. With Harry Shannon and his recording orchestra on the stage.

Haskin Booklet Tells All About Planes And Aviation

How's your air nomenclature today? With aviation and aeronautics in common use today, few indeed are they who do not know that aireron, strut, keel, rudder and tail-skid are parts of airplanes.

But for the benefit of those who would know all facts about airplanes, such as the dates of notable flights and such, Freedric J. Haskin, the Post Crescent's representative at Washington, has compiled a booklet telling all about airplanes and everything connected with aeronautics.

This book is the latest and most complete of its kind on the market. It opens with Famous Events in the Development of Flying and dates away back to 1490 when Leonardi da Vinci, an Italian, wrote a treatise on the flights of birds. From then on the history goes through early glider experiments, Langley's steam propelled models and then the Wright's flight.

Then comes a story about how an airplane flies, explaining all about air currents and how the tiny tornadoes created by the action of the wind from the propeller forms a vacuum and lifts the airplanes in the air.

A diagram shows how the pilot sits and how the "joy stick" makes the big machines behave with a slight movement. Following is a resume of different kinds and types of airplanes now in use and—all in all—the booklet is one that everyone interested in aviation should have in order to talk or listen intelligently to conversation about aeronautics.

A coupon, which, if filled out and mailed to Mr. Haskin will be found on page 7 of this paper.

SELECT CHARACTERS FOR SENIORS' PLAY

Miss Margaret Keller and Jack Roudebush were selected to take leading parts in the senior class play, at the final tryouts Saturday morning at Appleton high school. The play, "Bab" by Edward Carpenter, a four act romantic comedy, will be given at Fischer's Appleton theatre on May 28.

Of the 75 pupils who tried out, the following were chosen: Margaret Keller, Phyllis Ornstein, Florence Schultz, Bernice Parker, Diana Ressman, Jack Roudebush, Carlton Roth, Charles Peerenboom, Aloysius Gage, Donald MacMahon and Robert Rechner.

NOT TO SHOW FAVORS IN ZONING ORDINANCE

Business properties which existed in residential districts before the adoption of the zoning ordinance will not be given special favors for the time being at least, it was indicated at a meeting of the city plan commission a few days ago when the group turned down Alderman Mark Catlin's proposed amendment to the law.

Mr. Catlin has been of the opinion that much of the city's trouble with the zoning ordinance could be avoided if an amendment which existed in the residential district before the zoning ordinance was passed, from the provision of the law. Under the present statutes the businesses are allowed to exist but no improvements can be made to buildings unless the district is placed in a business section.

The ordinance has been before the plan commission and the council before and was disapproved.

LAWRENCE TRACKMEN SWAMP OSHKOSH TEACHERS, 79 47

Doug Hyde Leads Viking Victors With 18 Points, Including Three Firsts

Don Hyde, Ellis, Pope, Menning, Wolfe Also Cut Deeply into Point Column

Exhibiting exceptional strength in the track events and surprising their followers in the jumps the Coach A. C. Denny's Lawrence college track and field athletes had little trouble downing a weak Oshkosh Teacher college team Saturday afternoon at Whiting field. The final score was 79-47, with Oshkosh scoring heavily, in fact 21 points, in the three weight events where the Blue is exceedingly weak

In the track events, Lawrence took first in every event but one, the high hurdles, scoring slams in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and first-seconds in the mile and two mile. In the broad jump and high jump Lawrence placed one-two and in the pole vault first and second.

Lawrence's co-captains Doug and Don Hyde of Appleton, Menning and Wolf furnished the features for the Blue. Three Vikings, Mueller, star distance man, Humphrey and Fischl were out of the meet with illnesses. Doug Hyde was high point man with firsts in the 100 and 220-yard dash and the 220-yard hurdles and second in the high jump for 18 points. He chalked up marks of 10 2 and 23 flat in the events Don Hyde won the 440 in 55.8 and took a second to Doug in the century. Menning had 10 points with firsts in the half-mile and mile and Wolf, Pope and Ellis tied Don Hyde for third high point man for Lawrence, each having a first and a second.

Wright, Dahlke, Clow led Oshkosh with Fell and Johnson close behind Wright had a first, a tie for first and a second for 12 points Dahlke had two firsts in the weights for 10 and Clow had a first and second in the hurdles for 8. Fell and Clow each had a pair of seconds.

440 IS FEATURE

The most interesting race of the day was the 440-yard dash where Captain Johnson, who only the week before had run the event in 52 flat, met Capt. Don Hyde and Rasmussen of Lawrence. The race was a dead heat to the final few feet when Hyde forged ahead just enough to breast the tape a winner. Rasmussen showed surprising strength to finish a close third. Lawrence's two distance stars divided the honors in the longer races Menning leading Wolf in the mile and taking the half-mile from Johnson of Oshkosh, while Wolfe added the two-mile with little trouble.

Oshkosh failed to enter a relay team and Lawrence's quartet the Hydes, Pope and Brussat ran the distance against time making it in 1:34. The event might have been faster but for a mixup in handing the baton, one of the members of the team pacing the Vikings passing the baton to an enemy runner.

In the intersorority outdoor meet held in connection with the dual games with Oshkosh the Delta Gamma team, catpained by Doug Hyde won the banner, the captain scoring 18 of the team's 27 points. Kappa Delta was second with 22. Zeta Tau Alpha third with 17 and Beta Phi Alpha fourth with 12

Summary:

100-yard dash— First, Doug Hyde, Lawrence; second, Don Hyde, Lawrence, third, Pope, Lawrence. Time, :10 2.

Mile run — First, Menning, Lawrence, second, Wolf, Lawrence, third, Donohue, Oshkosh Normal Time, 5:06 8.

220-yard dash—First, Doug Hyde, Lawrence; second, Pope, Lawrence; third, Brussatt, Lawrence Time, :23

High hurdles—First, Clow, Oshkosh Normal; second, Wright, Oshkosh Normal; third, Cannon, Lawrence Time, :17.2.

440-yard dash - First, Don Hyde, Lawrence second, Johnson, Oshkosh Normal; third, Rasmusser, Lawrence Time, :55 8.

Two mile run — First, Wolf, Lawrence, second Jesse, Lawrence; third, Erdman, Oshkosh Normal Time, 10:44 4.

220-yard low hurdles—First, Doug Hyde, Lawrence; second, Clow, Oshkosh Normal; third, Muck, Oshkosh Normal. Time, 26 1.

FIGHTS, RIOTS, FOULS FEATURE SOCCER MATCH

New York—(AP)—Soccer is becoming a serious matter in the Metropolitan area.

Two fist fights, two near riots and the calling of 50 fouls were side-attractions Sunday as the New York Giants and the New York N oonds battled to a scoreless draw in an American Soccer League engag ment

The number of fouls called—50 in 90 minutes—was believed to have established a new record.

VALLEY LOOP UMPIRES GET LAST INSTRUCTION

President C O Estes of Appleton Fox River Valley league held a meeting with his umpires here Sunday afternoon. The league executive outlined his plans for the season to the umpires and laid down the law that no unruly conduct would be tolerated in the playing field

Valley league club owners will meet here Tuesday evening for the final pre-season conference as the pennant chase gets under way Sunday with Green Bay playing in Kimberly, Kaukauna at Fond du Lac and the Neenah-Menasha machine exhibiting its baseball wares in Appleton

TWO SECONDS

Two seconds in competition with the greatest high school athletes of six middlewest states and some of the greatest in the country was the record of Capt. Johnston of the Appleton high team in the annual Midwest Interscholastic Relays Saturday at Madison Johnston, whose first year of track competition was 1927, last spring, finished second in the 100-yard dash and broad jump.

In the former event the local boy forced the winner to a new meet record 10 seconds, and two of the five watches caught him in 9 9 In the second event he was second to a leap of 21 feet 5 inches. He failed to place in the shotput where another new meet record, 48 feet, was esetablished.

JAPANESE BEAT CUBA IN DAVIS CUP MATCH

New York—(AP)—The Japanese Davis cup team has firmly intrenched itself in the position of a leading contender for honors in the American zone by its overwhelming defeat of Cuba in the first round at Havana Figured in the advance calculations as the most dangerous opponents of the United States on this side of the water, the Japanese showed their strength by sweeping through three straight matches to defeat the Cubans

While it hardly seems likely that the Oriental team can do more than offer unexpectedly strong competition for Captain Tilden and his mates, it appears almost certain that Japan will be one of the American zone finalists

In the second round Japan will meet Canada, which drew a first round bye and is still an unknown In the other half of the draw the United States comes up against the comparatively weak Chinese team The winners of these ties will meet to decide which will play in the interzone final in France

In the singles matches against Cuba, Tiezo Toba, captain of the team, easily won a straight set victory over Dr Vince Banet, the Cuban champion. In the doubles Banet and Paris carried Toba and Tamio his partner for four sets, the last at deuce, before they lost 6 3, 6 3 4 6, 9 7

COHEN'S SUCCESS HAS SCOUTS ON NEW TRAIL

Chicago—Seems as it all the major league clubs are eager to get hold of a Jewish ball player

The New York Giants have Andy Cohen playing regularly, and also have Jake Levy out in the minors on option The Cleveland Indians have Jonah Goldman, former Syracuse star, and the Yankees have Jimmy Reese coming up next year.

Scout Jimmy Doyle for the Detroit Tigers says he has landed a real star for the Detroit club

Doyle's find is Ike Goldstein and he was found in Wheeling, W. Va. Other than he had paid Goldstein $1,000 to sign, Doyle says nothing about the rookie.

I understand McGraw paid $10 000 for Levy," says Doyle. "Well, this Goldstein is worth twice as much in my estimation."

If all these rookie finds come through as expected next season, the club that won't boast of a Jewish regular will be an exceptional club.

REID WINSEY WINS "W" AS CARDINAL SWIMMER

Reid Winsey, son of Mr. and Mrs W. F Winsey, Appleton, was awarded a "W" sweater last week by the University of Wisconsin athletic council for his work as a member of the Badger swimming team the last season Winsey placed in the dash events in practically every Badger tank meet He is the second Appleton boy to win a "W" at the state school this year, Richard Neller, receiving a letter a few months ago for his work on the university gymnasium team Both received their early training at the Appleton Y M C. A tank and gymnasium

CANADIAN TEAMS COME TO MARQUETTE RELAYS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Captain J. R. Cortis, head coach of the Canadian Olympic track team and eighteen members of his Central institute track squad of Hamilton, Ontario, arrived in Milwaukee Sunday night for a week of training before the Marquette University National Relay Carnival here next Saturday The Humberside men are from the town of Toronto, Ontario and are to arrive at Marquette Monday night Sixty five schools have entered the Marquette carnival thus far.

BROOKLYN ROBINS DREAM OF BANNER IN NATIONAL LOOP

Dodgers Hold Lead by Taking Double Header from Phillies; Giants Split

Given the moral support of a presidential year the Brooklyn Robins are dreaming of pennants and world's series.

Although the flowers that bloom in the spring generally are withered beyond repair by fall, Wilbert Robinson's flock of hopefuls are not letting that interfere with their dreams so long as they can stag on top of the National League standing. It is a matter of record that Brooklyn won a pennant in 1920— a presidential year —and came close to repeating four years later.

Given pitching better than even Uncle Robby has a right to expect, the Robins took both ends of a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Nationals at Ebbets Field Sunday, 3 to 1 and 3 to 0 Doug McWeeney gave the Quakers three hits and a solitary tally in the opener. Watson Clark allowed five hits and absolutely no runs whatever in the night cap. Bissonette's third home run of the season and a wild throw by Fresco Thompson accounted for Brooklyn's tallies in the first game Harvey Hendrick poled out a circuit drive with one on in the first inning of the second engagement to decide the issue then and there as it afterwards proved.

The New York Giants split a double-header with the Boston Braves at the Polo grounds The Braves fell on Virgil Barnes in the eighth inning of the first encounter and hammered out a 5 to 3 victory. That rally, featured by Eddie Brown's home run with two on, gave Boston all its runs Homers by Terry and Ott accounted for the three New York tallies The Giants pounded three pitchers for 15 hits to take the closing battles, 12 to 8. Harper hit for the circuit in the sixth inning.

CUBS FINALLY WIN

At Chicago, the Cubs turned on the St. Louis Cardinals and squeezed out a 6 to 5 verdict in 12 innings. Heathcote scoring the winning run on Mike Gonzales' single. Grover Cleveland Alexander started for the Cards but found the going too tough as early as the second inning. Bill McKechnie threw in 18 players, six of them pitchers, in an effort to turn the tide St. Louis said. Charlie Root held the invaders to one hit in the last four innings and was credited with his first victory of the season.

Eppa Rixey bested Ray Kremer in a tight pitcher's duel at Cincinnati, the Reds sinking the bold Buccaneers of Pittsburg, 3 to 2.

Babe Ruth's fourth circuit drive of the season sent the Washington Senators down to their sixth straight defeat and the New York Yankees into the American League lead. The score was 7 to 5. The Bambino's smash came in the sixth inning with two on base Horace Lisenbee was the victim again Three of Ruth's four homers have been achieved at Lisenbee's expense.

Detroit halted Cleveland's winning streak by eking out a 10-inning 7 to 6 victory at Cleveland Cleveland got 18 hits to the Tigers' 15 but failed to make as good use of them

WHITE SOX LOSE

Eleven hits off Akins and Conally were enough to give the Browns a 5 to 2 decision over the Chicago White Sox at St Louis Jack Ogden, who has been feeling ill, nearly collapsed after running out a double in the sixth inning Sam Gray took his place on the mound and held the Sox scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Boston and Philadelphia were not scheduled

HAWKEYE NINE WHIPS CARDS IN 12 INNINGS

Iowa City, Iowa—(AP)—The University of Iowa baseball team won its first Big Ten baseball game of the season here Saturday by squeezing through to a 5 to 4 victory over Wisconsin in 12 innings. Blackford's single scored Capt Terry from second with the winning run.

HEADS ATHLETES

D'Yuh ever hear a hard-boiled male egg say that gurl athletes might be good but never had looks? If you did, take a look at this picture and change your mind. She is not a model for what the well-dressed girl will wear in sport clothes or an example of what clothes will do for a cute girl She is Oliver Bushnell of New York the president of the Girls' Athletic Association at Columbia University

BADGERS, MARQUETTE STRONG AT CARNIVAL

Des Moines, Ia.,—(AP)—While Illinois' colors were carried to victory in many events, Wisconsin and Marquettee fared well in the historic classic of the cinder track here Saturday. The festival was the nineteenth annual Drake Relays in which the best that around 75 schools could offer was entered.

Charley Bullamore of the University of Wisconsin won the two-mile race and Capt Frank Glaser of the Marquette track team again demonstrated he is among the best pole vaulters in the country when he tied for first in his event with three others

Pahlmeyer of Wisconsin was second in the high hurdles, Trumble of Nebraska leading him across the finish line In the quarter and half mile relay events Wisconsin's teams finished third, trailed each time by Marquette's runners who took fourth.

Coach Harry Gill's proteges from Champaign left a decided impression that they carried off a major portion of the individual honors of the meet They took first in the two-mile relay and four mile, and tied for first in the pole vault, were second in the quarter mile relay, and shotput, third in the discus and the hop step and jump and gained a tie for third in the high jump

BAY CLUBBERS SWAMP WRIGHTSTOWN, 19 TO 0

Green Bay— (Special—The Green Bay Valley leaguers opened their season here Sunday by walloping the Wrightstown Inter-County league team, 19 to 0, before a fair sized crowd. The visitors got but one hit off four Green Sox hurlers and sixteen struck out A trio of Wrightstown slabbers found the going tough.

JOHNSTON TAKES TWO SECONDS AT MIDWEST RELAYS

Orange Captain Forces 100-yard Dash Winner to New Record of 10 Seconds

Competing against 300 of the midwest's best high school athletes, many of whom probably are included among the nation's best prep men, Capt. Swede Johnston, Appleton high school athletic ace, established an enviable record Saturday at Madison in the annual Midwest Interscholastic Relay carnival sponsored by the University of Wisconsin, the first real meet of his entire career.

While none of his teammates even placed in any other events, the Valley conference three-record holder placed second in two of three events entered, in one forcing the first-place winner to a new conference record while finishing only a step behind. This was in the 100 yard dash which was captured by Metcalf, Negro sprint star of Tilden high, Chicago, in 10 seconds flat, one tenth better than the old mark. Swede finished second ahead of Nugnis of Froebel high, Gary, Ind., and Porzol of Tilden.

In the broad jump the Orange leader finished second to a 21 feet 5 inch mark made by Jackson of the Gary high school and beat out another Gary star and Dunn of Madison Central. In the shotput the local youth failed to place but the winning distance was 48 feet, another new meet record.

SEVEN MARKS FALL

The class of the field in the meet was shown by the fact that seven records fell and one unofficial world mark was set. In the century where Johnston finished second, two of the five timers caught the winner in 9.9 seconds

Kabat of Milwaukee Bay View shattered the old mark in the shotput with the heave of 48 feet. Kabat, while winning the discus, did not approach the fine work he had shown in early season drills and had to be content with 116 feet.

Tilden Tech annexed its second record for the day when a 440-yard relay team with the flying Metcalfe at anchor turned in the fine time of 44.4 seconds for the distance.

VAULT MARK GOES

Bowen added another trophy to the list carried away by Chicago schools when it won the mile relay and broke the old mark by three and one tenth seconds East of Milwaukee pushed the windy city four all the way.

The last mark to fall went to Allen of Salem, O, when he cleared the bar in the pole vault at 12 feet 1-4 inch Allen was tied by his mate Roessler, who cleared the height on a final effort The pair then set to work to shatter the national interscholastic Allen rolled over the bar at 13 feet for an unofficial mark due to the fact that he had four tries at 12 feet 5 inches

In a stirring duel with Milwaukee Washington Milwaukee East won the distance medley race

Milwaukee annexed another first place when Bruss of Boys' Tech won the javelin throw with a heave of 158 feet, 4 1-2 inches Boyer of West was fourth in the same event

GARY BREAKS RECORD

Another meet record was established when Froebel High of Gary, Ind won the sprint medley relay in 3:41 7

Oak Park, Ill., High school broke the fifth record of the meet when its men completed the half mile relay in 1:32 4.

SHARKEY FAVORED TO WHIP DELANEY

Consider Poor Heavy Showing of Old light Heavy Champion

New York—(AP)—Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey fight 15 rounds or less at Madison Square Garden Monday.

The Boston sailor man is an 8 to 5 favorite chiefly on account of the disappointing showing Delaney has made in the heavyweight lists

The match brings together two of the ring's greatest mysteries Once regarded as an eventual certainty to wear the mantle that now drapes about Gene Tunney's broad shoulders, Delaney lost prestige he will find hard to regain, in his losing battle with Tom Heeney, the rugged New Zealander. Unless he flashes again the form that carried him to the light heavyweight throne, Delaney may find himself cut loose from any further opportunity of crashing into the "Big money" among the heavyweights

Sharkey is in much the same predicament as is his opponent His draw battle with Heeney and the bout he lost to Johnny Risko apparently demonstrated that the symtoms of greatness discovered in him after he beat Harry Wills, Jimmy Maloney and others were symtoms and nothing more.

TOO MUCH CAUTION

Caution—too much of it—was the chief cause for the poor showings made by both Delaney and Sharkey in Tex Richard's elimination tournament to develop an outstanding contender for Tunney's crown, most boxing experts believe

Tom Heeney, who came out of the tournament with the prize—a match with the champion—is due to arrive from England Monday and is expected to witness the fight

DONAHUE GIVES HINTS FOR YOUTHFUL HURLERS

Cincinnati, O.—Pete Donahue, who only a few days ago reached a salary agreement with the Cincinnati club, let drop a few hints on pitching as he signed that is well worth passing on to ambitious youngsters

"Try to get that first ball over the plate with plenty of stuff on it," advises the star Redleg hurler, "and if it is a strike 'go to work' on the batsman

"Always try to place your outfield correctly and then pitch to your batter's strength. Your outfield more than likely will get him.

"Making a batter hit out of his field also is a good thing to try. A clever pitcher can do that"

Fox Valley League Umpire Aspires To Major Position

Frankie Wickert, a leading umpire of the 1927 Fox River Valley League and one of the men who will work in the league this year starting when the season opens next Sunday, has high aspirations, according to a story appearing in a Milwaukee paper Sunday. Frankie is dreaming of the day he will handle the indicator behind the New York Yankees or Giants for he aspires to be a "real big-league" umpire Remembering this Appleton and Valley fans will watch his work in these parts closely this year

Here's the story:

"As a geenral rule boys who are old enough to think about baseball want to follow the footsteps of such diamond idols as Ruth, Hornsby, Cobb and Speaker.

They dream of the day when they'll slap the old "apple" out of the lot like Ruth, or "outsmart" pitchers as Hornsby, Cobb and Speaker do

Now comes a fellow who is different, a fellow who never cared about playing.

Frankie Wickert's life ambition was to be a big league umpire and in his heart there still lingers a ray of hope that some day he'll be "calling 'em" in the big show.

For 18 years Frankie has worked behind the bat and around the bases, calling em safe or out.

It was back in 1910 in the Merchants & Manufacturers' league at Fond du Lac that he first hung a mask on his dome, and slid a breast protector o'er him and went into that part of baseball that has always given him a "kick" with a capital K.

BECAME A MANAGER

The business of officiating, "smartened" Frankie up considerably and at the end of the season he was prevailed upon to manage a team in the Merchants league at Fondy He did this for four years, umpiring now and then in games in nearby towns merely for the love of it.

In 1917 came Uncle Sam's call and soon Frankie was over on the other side of the pond in the thick of the brawl. In between spats, however there was time for baseball and Frank got the job of managing the 150th machine gun battalion keeping him in contact with the game.

When the Milwaukee Umpires' association was formed here in 1920 Frank joined it and worked in it until 1924 when he departed for California

Still he umpired Out there he called 'em in the Petroleum and the Forester leagues

Back he came in 1926 and he shifted jobs moving then to the Fox River Valley league He was in that circuit last year and he goes back Sunday to resume his duties as Valley ump

"To hope for a big league umpire berth is much like hoping to play on a big league team I know, but I'm still looking for the day when I'll go up," Wickert told me Saturday in relating his baseball experiences

But that's only the half of it or rather it's the half of the Wickert baseball family

SON DONS MASK

Frankie believes in the old maxim, "like father, like son," and he's certain that if the call to the big leagues doesn't come to him Frankie Jr will surely get it.

"Yessiree—he's just 4 now," Frank, Sr., went on "Just 4 and I'm a tellin' ya he wears a mask and protector like a major Last season he'd do what papa did when the games were over Soon's I'd get home he'd grab the mask bury his head in it, and then he'd start

'Lad dees and gen'man — batter-rees for t'day's game—'

"And then he'd turn to me for pitcher's name and when I'd tell him Noll worked for Oshkosh he'd repeat it just dandy

"So you see I'm quite sure the Wickerts are going to be represented in the big leagues some day, sooner or later."

Bobby Jones Expects To Play Strong Game At 40

This is another of a series of Associated Press stories dealing with sports personalities and their prospects in approaching national and international competitions.

Baltimore, Md.,—(AP)—Bobby Jones 26 years of age and with 23 national championship competitions in 12 years behind him, expects to play 'reasonably good golf" at 40.

Charged with being too conservative since he is today playing as strong a game as he has ever shown, he agreed that there is a chance that he may be a 'mild threat" at 45 if the demands of his profession do not make too great inroads on his game.

Beyond 45 the Atlanta wizard has no plans Reminded that Harry Vardon at 50 was good enough to come from numerous British triump to be runner-up in the championship here, he modestly replied 'but I'm not Vardon'

The Bobby of today is better than was the Bobby of 5 years ago when he won his first championship. George Duncan, the fast moving Scot, predicted in 1922 that Jones at 30 would be a better golfer than he was at 20. With four years to go, "Rubbertire" as the pros call him apparently is about to show that Duncan's forecasts are as good as his advice to putters to "hit the ball and knock it in the hole"

Robert Tyre Jones, at the moment is much heavier than he will be when he steps on the first tee at Olympia Fields to make another bid for the National Open championship 'I put it on in the winter and golf it off in the summer he explained 'Not all of it fades away from the walking either. The nervous energy expended in serious competitions burns a lot of flesh away."

"Golf, you know, is played up here," said Bobby, pointing to his head. "I do not think one's physical condition is very important. Of course the eyesight must be good but if you can see and think a little bit, it seems to me you can play. I don't worry about my weight I let that take care of itself It always has . . . . . so far"

Bobby has a lot of golf to play this year in spite of his failure to defend his British Open title, the first time in his career that he has not played an encore after winning a major championship He will try for the open championship, captain the Walker team, and make an effort to retain the amateur crown

Jones is golf's outstanding figure and every indication is that he will stand at the top or thereabout for at least 15 years Greatest tribute has been paid to him by the golf professionals.

"Why do the pros like Bobby Jones?" Johnny Farrell was asked.

"That's easy," replied Johnny, "Because he's not only a great golfer, but a gentleman."

Mike Brady's explanation was the same although different. The winged-foot pro, who was almost a champion, said of Jones, "we like Bobby because he is not tender of his reputation He's always willing to play with us and help us make a good tournament'

There will not be any loud chorus of dissent with Bobby's "hope' that he will play "reasonably good golf' at 40 —or 50 or 60 or what have you?

LOWEN'S PATH WAS NOT AN EASY ONE IN DAYS OF HIS YOUTH

Candiate for Presidential Nomination Had to Fight Poverty as a Boy

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the seventh in the series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for the Post-Crescent by Robert Talley, is the second of three articles dealing with the career of ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden. The final article will appear tomorrow.

BY ROBERT TALLEY

Washington—There is all the "typically American color" that a novelist might desire in the story of Frank O. Lowden, now a candidate for the presidency.

Back in 1858 his father, Lorenzo Lowden, migrated from Pennsylvania to Minesota, following close behind the Indian and the Buffalo. Lorenzo Lowden, a farmer and a blacksmith, settled at the little village of Sunrise, Minn., and there on Jan. 26, 1861, Frank O. Lowden was born.

"I was raised on a farm, a pioneer farm," Lowden once told an audience. "There were common hardships to endure, common dangers to face.

"During those early days there was once a very formidable uprising of the Sioux Indians of Minnesota. My father was absent from home with other men, patrolling the surrounding forests to prevent a possible Indian surprise. My mother, not daring to leave me in the house for fear of the Indians, took me with her to the pasture at milking time."

Hard times came upon Minnesota in the sixties. When Frank was barely seven years old, Lorenzo Lowden loaded his family into a covered wagon and headed south in quest of more inviting fields. At Pleasant Point, in Hardin county, Iowa, the blacksmith halted and decided to locate.

Barefooted, the boy plodded beside the wagon, helping his father drive the oxen.

After boyhood upon the farm and at the blacksmith shop, Frank Lowden "worked his way" through Iowa state university, working as a farm laborer in summer. When he graduated in 1885 it was as class valedictorian.

Lowden taught school for a time, and then Chicago and a law career beckoned to him. He went there, got a job as clerk in a law firm, worked in the office by day and studied law in a night school. He specialized in business law and succeeded.

His fame as a lawyer, especially in dealing with intricate business litigation, began to spread.

In 1898, Lowden—then a prosperous attorney—married. He met Miss Florence Pullman, who had been wooed unsuccessfully by European royalty, aboard ship when returning from a trip to London.

It is related that when Lowden asked George M. Pullman for his daughter's hand in marriage the aged sleeping car Croesus eyed him quizzically and asked him how much his income was. Lowden named the figure.

"My boy," Pullman smiled, "that isn't enough to buy violets for Florence!"

Nevertheless, they were married and, like the couples in the story books, they have "lived happily ever after." They have four children—three daughters, Florence, Harriett and Frances, and one son, Pullman.

About the time of his marriage, Lowden began to acquire the first parts of his now famous Sinissippi farm, his 5,000-acre tract near Oregon, Ill., on which he resides. The farm is famous as a model of efficient agricultural and livestock methods.

In 1896, the law partnership of Lowden, Eastabrook & Davis was formed and rapidly became one of the best known firms in the middle west. It specialized on business law.

In 1900, Lowden tried his hand at politics but was defeated for governor by the Yates-Deneen forces, Deneen being nominated. In 1906 he was elected to Congress to fill the unexpired term of a member who had died. He continued there until 1913, when he voluntarily retired.

In 1916 he was elected governor of Illinois and served four years.

During his early years of residence in Chicago, Lowden met another young lawyer who had come to Chicago to seek his fortune. Both prospered, both gained fame and a fast friendship that endures until this day grew up between them.

That man was Charles G. Dawes, now vice president of the United States and also being mentioned for the presidency.

KANNEBERG DISPUTES MEANDER LINE CASE

Member of State Railroad Commission Says Court Was in Error

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin supreme court has before it a brief filed by Adolph Kanneberg, member of the state railroad commission, contending that the court was in error in the principles of law applied in a decision handed down three weeks ago in the "meander line" case of Carter Blatchford against Henry Voss and others.

A new decision by the court is expected to have an important bearing on cases to be decided in the future on the ownership of tracts of land adjacent to the shores of lakes and other waters.

In the case decided by the high court, the paintiff began an ejectment proceding to assert title to ownership of a small tract of land adjacent to a lake in Vilas county. He contended that because an original government survey showed a meander line at a part of the eastern boundary of his lot, he was entitled to cross the short portion of land until he reached the actual water line, no matter what might be the amount of intervening land.

The supreme court upheld the circuit court's ruling against the plaintiff to the effect that the land should go to the defendant, who claimed title to it. Mr. Kanneberg contends the principle applied in the case was wrong. It is claimed if such a precedent is set it endangers the title to ownership to many small tracts of land adjacent to lakes and other waters throughout the state.

STAGE PLAY MOVIE SUCCESS

A SCENE FROM THE FILM VERSION OF "CHICAGO" ADOPTED FROM THE FAMOUS PLAY BY THE SAME NAME WHICH WILL BE SHOWN AT THE ELITE THEATRE FOUR DAYS STARTING MONDAY.

And So They All Lived Happily Ever Afterward

The red-headed woodpecker which this spring made life miserable for August Arndt, 218 Lawrence-ct, by its repeated attempts to dig through a tin roof during the early morning hours, has left town for parts unknown.

The woodpecker was ousted from the Arndt home when a blacksmith put a piece of iron around a wren house door and stopped attempts to enlarge the opening.

Next word of the birds whereabouts was received by George T. Prim, Prim, chief of police, whose department had been requested to rush to the home of Harry Marshall, 224 N. Park-st, where the early morning rat-a-tat-tat identified the feathered nuisance to be the one which had caused so much trouble at the Arndt domicile without a doubt. The woodpecker, however, evidently was tipped off that the police rifle squad was coming and flew away. Last reports on its whereabouts were received from Tony Capigoni, assistant straw boss for the Soo line section gang, who said the bird was heading north and threatening destruction o telegraph poles as it went.

In commenting on the bird's departure, Mayor A. C. Rule and others about the city said.

Mayor Rule: I am glad that the situation ended in such a peaceful manner. It began to look as if the tranquility of the city was threatened.

M. G. Clark, valley Boy Scout executive: There is no question but that the woodpecker was an extraordinary one. While, as a general thing, I believe in protecting our feathered visitors, there was no sympathy for this one.

"Juicy" Gritzmacher: The departure of the woodpecker is a good thing for the city of Appleton. It began to look as if this might turn out to be a birdless city if the woodpecker continued his depredations.

George T. Prim, chief of police: The police department will now go back to normal. The extra heavy force maintained to quell possible early-morning riots will be done away with as soon as it is definitely determined that the woodpecker will not return. I am not now in a position to say whether the police department will be reduced in numbers.

Axel Fahlstrom, lock tender: The departure of the woodpecker has taken a big load off of my mind. I expected to wake up almost any morning and find several holes dug in the lock gates.

Earl Miller, architect: Plans I have been making for cement houses will have to be dropped now that the woodpecker scare is over.

And so, as the woodpecker makes his final adieu to August and the city of Appleton, Charles Hornbeck, paper maker of valley repute, who has been keeping close tab on the case since it first attracted attention, has this to say about woodpeckers:

The woodpecker's a funny bird,
It takes but just a speck of food to fill him, yet he brings his food in by the peck.

Book Of Knowledge

Warblers

There is a tragic legend of the Swallows. Not many years ago millions of Swallows, flying back from Africa, found their path in the air barred by a great snowstorm. They were too conservative, too instinctively wedded to an unwavering flight line to go round, but continued straight on to destruction. There have not been large numbers of Swallows in England since.

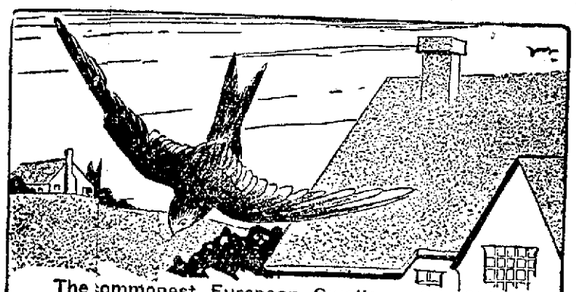

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1923-26.

Swallows have been seen, however, in the Arctic during the summer, which is evidence that there are insects there, since the bird eats only bugs

Here the artist has sketched young Swallows, whose feet are small and weak, must cling to build and enter their abodes.

The commonest European Swallow—the Chimney Swallow—erects its nest under the eaves of a house or in an unused chimney. Originally the bird took lodging among cliffs and rocky crags. Fearlessly he comes inland, cect from his African journey and enters the hearts of towns and villages. What is called a Chimney Swallow in America is a Swift.

ANGLERS TURNOUT FOR WHITE BASS FISHING

Fishermen from Many Miles Around Gather at New London Sunday

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—From early until late on Sunday banks of the three rivers, the Wolf, Embarrass and Little Wolf, in and near New London were lined with fishermen trying by every wile known to wielders of hook and line to capture some of the white bass which are at this season on their way up stream to spawning grounds, or to waylay the pike and pickerel which are returning from their annual pilgrimage. The high winds o the day proved somewhat of a detriment to successful fishing as also did the frequent showers. A number from this city reported successful catches. Others tried plug-baits, worms and minnows with no success. Many of the fishermen were from out of town, coming from as far as Milwaukee. Shawano sent quite a delegation including some of the fairer sex.

HONOR 18 STUDENTS FOR CLASS AVERAGES

Lucille Becker, Hortonville, Made Good Record for Past Four Years

Hortonville—Eighteen students of the Hortonville High school earned a place for themselves on the honor roll for the last six-weeks period by maintaining an average of 90 or above

The names and averages of these students follow: Seniors—Lucille Becker, 93.75; Jane Bottensek, 93.5; Elmer Dobbertsein, 92; Margaret Haughton, 91.5; Lloyd Jack, 90; Juniors—Ralph Haas, 93; Marcella Gitter, 92; Dolores Hoerig, 91.75; Helen Sambs, 91.25; Olive Leitzke, 91.25; Sophomores—Oliver Leitzke, 90.25; Dodothy Sternicke, 90; Freshmen—Arlean Moder, 94; Della Komp, 92.75; Oscar Bohren, 92; Walter Kaufman, 91.75; Alice Hidde, 91; Florence Buckman, 90.25.

The names of the students who had a perfect attendance record, having been neither absent nor tardy are Seniors—Lucille Becker, Martin Borsche, Jane Bottenske, Elmer Dobberstein, Everett Johnson, Zeda Dobberstein; Juniors—Ralph Haas, Lorraine Kruckeberg, Olive Leitzke; Sophomores—Harland Jones, Oliver Leitzke, Laura Lueck; Freshmen—Francis Beschta, Florence Buckman, Kermit Diestler, Etola Krenke, Gilbert Kruckeberg, Lucille Sanborn, Francis Schuldes.

Lucille Becker, who maintained an average of 93.3 for her four years in high school, has been announced as the veladictorian of the June graduating class of the Hortonville High school. The salutatorian is Jane Bottensek, whose average is 92.4. Elmer Dobberstein's average was only a slight fraction lower, 92.2. The two other students who had averages above 90 are: Margaret Haughton, 90.8, and Lloyd Jack, 90.

Besides keeping a high average in their studies these two girls, the Valedictorian and salutatorian, also took an active part in outside activities. Lucille Becker, as a Senior, acted as secretary-treasurer of the class, secretary-treasurer of the Athletic Association and editor of the school paper. She also participated in the declamatory contests for the last three years. Literary Society work and participation in plays also formed an important part of her outside work. Besides this she won third place in Senior typing at the commercial contest held at Neenah recently. Jane Bottensek's outside activities were also very numerous. Her part in Literary Society work, plays, and forensics is especially commendable. Her reward was a second place last year and a third this year in declamatory. She was also a member of the Girls' Sextette.

There are eighteen members of this year's class: Lucille Becker, Martin Borsche, Jane Bottensek, Rachel Bottensek, Norma Buchman, Elmer Dobberstein, Margaret Haughton, Norman Helterhoff, Lloyd Jack, Everett Johnson, Arnold Maahs, Myrtle Olk, Otis Poole, Ella Prentice, Leola Roesler, Bruce Schwebs, Zeda Dobberstein, and Ruben Spiegelberg.

Elmer Dobberstein is the youngest student ever to have graduated from the Hortonville High school. He is only fourteen years old, and, as his average given above shows, has always done exceptionally good work; besides he has always taken an active part in school activities. He played on the baseball and basketball teams, participated in Literary Society work, school plays, took a part in forensics, and as a Senior acted as business manager of the school paper. In the recent Commercial contest held at Neenah he won first place in the Senior Typing contest with a speed of 60.2 per minute in a fifteen minute test.

An invitation has been extended to the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary by the auxiliary of the Norris-Spencer post at New London, to attend a get together meeting of several of the surrounding units in the district and to meet the new department president, Mrs. Hiltzer, Milwaukee, May 11 in the club room of the Legion and Auxiliary at New London.

Mrs. R. J. Hough of Bear Creek spent the past several days at the Steve Otis home caring for their infant daughter who has been quite ill.

Mrs. Steven Otis, Mrs. Donald Matthewson, Mrs. Leland Dabareiner and Mrs. Ralph Miller attended a meeting of the auxiliary unit to Norris Spencer Post, American Legion, at New London Thursday evening.

E. L. Graef was a Winneconne visitor Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Schroeder and daughter Eileen and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bocken and daughter Marjorie of Winneconne spent Sunday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Sternicke.

MANAWA H. S. SENIORS PRESENT CLASS PLAY

Edna Schwandt and Arnold Schultz Marry Thursday Evening

Manawa—"Step On It, Stan" the senior class play, was presented at the high school gymnasium before a big crowd, Friday evening. The production differed slightly from the usual run of school plays in that it depended more on clever bits of conversation rather than burlesque situations for its comedy.

Characters in "Step On It, Stan" included Walter Van Otnum as Stan Gray, the town's leading failure; Kneale Lindsay as Charlie Norris, the town's leading Romeo; Edmund Haves as Syd Pressley, the town's leading loafer; Lawrence Groher as Ray Crider, the town's leading citizen; Lucille Scott as Peggy Brooks, who inspires Stan to "step on it," Ethelyn Smerling as Hazel Wilton, the object of Charlie's affections; Ethel Kelley as Prudence Quimby, the town's leading old maid; Kathryn Elsbury as Sibley Shepard, the town's richest girl; Alice Elsbury as Sarah Boobs, direct from Willow Springs in search of her fortune. This play was the first of the 1928 high school graduating class's commencement events

Arnold Erick Drath died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Drath, in the town of Union after a two weeks' illness with acute rheumatic fever. He was born in the town of Union on May 8, 1911. He attended Sturm's Hill rural school near Manawa for several years, and later was confirmed with the class of 1926 from the Lutheran parochial school at Symco.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Drath, five sisters, Mrs. Ferdinand Schmikel, of New London, Mrs. Paul Schneiderwendt of Clintonville, Mrs. Ralph Implemen N. London, Olga at home, and Mrs. Arnold Glocke, of Little Wolf, and six brothers, Albert of Little Wolf, August of New London, Julius of New London, Gustav, William, and Elmer at home.

Funeral services were held from St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church at Symco, Rev. G. H. Kitzmann officiating. Pall bearers were Loran Frazier, Karl Rosenau, Harold Piotter, Henry Glocke, Ralph Zimmerman, and Frederick Ebert. Interment was in the Symco cemetery.

The marriage of Miss Edna Schwandt, daughter of Mrs. Fred Mueske of the town of Little Wolf, and Arnold Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schultz, Sr., of the town of Royalton, occurred at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church here, Thursday evening. Rev. R. A. Karpinsky performed the ceremony.

Attendants to the wedding couple were Miss Della Mueske and Henry Schultz, Miss Cecelia Knopp and Erwin Mueske. Flower girls were Lorraine Schwandt and Anna Schultz.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mueske after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Schultz will make their home on the farm in the town of Royalton recently purchased by the groom from his father.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley of Royalton and Francis Roman of this place are members of the cast for "The Poor Nut," the senior class play which will be given during commencement week at Stevens Point state teachers college

SPRING CLEANUP AT FREMONT UNDERWAY

Gardens Being Laid Out and Tennis Court Put in Shape for Play

Special to Post-Crescent

Fremont—The marriage of Miss Angeha Otto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Otto, to Edwin Warmbier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Warmbier, was solemnized at the St. Paul's Lutheran church at 8 o'clock, Thursday evening. The Rev. E. A. Schmidt performed the ceremony. The attendants were Arthur Schuelke and Miss Alma Pagel, Adolph Otto and Miss Natalie Strey and Louis Warbler and Miss Margaret Struck. A supper was served to immediate friends and relatives at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will live at Weyauwega.

Fremont engaged in its annual spring clean up during the past week. Lawns have been or are being raked and cleaned and prepared for the summer, yards have been cleaned and gardening has commenced.

Farmers, who have been delayed by our belated spring, are working on their land now and some planting has been done. Work has commenced on two cottages at the "Pines," on the Wolf river, several miles southeast of Fremont. The local public tennis court, made possible by Mesdames Emma Greiner and Mary Lungwitz, who donated the use of a lot, and J. M. Yankee, who is largely responsible for building the court and fixtures, was reconditioned for the summer by Mr. Yankee, this week.

Relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rehbein pleasantly surprised them at their home, Wednesday evening, at a farewell party in their honor. Mr. and Mrs Rehbein will soon move to Zittau, where Mr. Rehbein will operate a cheese factory. Cards were played and lunch served. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. John Button, Mr. and Mrs. William Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Kloehn, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Roesler, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zuehlke, William Puls and Miss Clara Puls and Henry Jasman.

The members of the Union Ladies aid society met at the home of Mrs. Guy Kinsman, Thursday afternoon. Those present were Mesdames John Button, George H. Dobbins, Bernard Davidson, N. H. Johnson, Lark Lovejoy, Alpheus and George Steiger, E. L. Schmidt, R. W. Summers, H. E. Redemann, A. M. Sader, and Clara Sherburne, and Miss Dorothy Lovejoy.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Jorgenson and family of Freezland were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Juhnke, last Sunday.

There will be services in German at 9:30 o'clock and English services at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning at the St. Paul's Lutheran church.

HORTONVILLE HIGH SCHOOL WINS MEET

Speakers Take First Honors in League Contest Last Week

Special to Post-Crescent

Hortonville—The Hortonville high school won first place in an interschool speaking contest against Shiocton and Bear Creek at the local opera house Wednesday evening. Each school was represented by four contestants, two in oratory and two in declamatory.

Norman Helterhoff, Hortonville, won first place for his school with the oration, The Cash Value of Personality. The Shiocton orators, Tim Main speaking Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death and Charles Middleton giving Benefits of a College Education, won second and third places respectively.

First place for a declamation went to Evelyn Rohan, Bear Creek, who gave as her selection Angel's Wickedness. Hortonville girls won second and third places. Margaret Haughton, with Friday Afternoon at Our School and Helen Sambs with, Who's Afraid.

According to the point system used, the four contestants from Hortonville won first place for their school; Shiocton received second, and Bear Creek third. Hortonville high school now possesses for one year the loving cup awarded by this league.

Judges for the contest were three members of the New London high school faculty. Miss Hoffman, C. T. Polomis and A. H. Koten.

Two musical numbers were part of the program, a song by the girls' glee club, accompanied by Margaret Haughton at the piano, and a group of songs by the girls' sextet with Gladys accompaniment.

Mrs. L. Sternicke son Roy and daughter, Dorothy and Mrs. Sternicke's mother, Mrs. Miller autoed to Winneconne Thursday.

The field meet for the rural schools of the town of Hortonia was held at Knowlton Hill school Friday April 27. Oak Park school won first honors in the meet. A. L. Collar, Mrs. John McHugh and Miss Lehmen were the judges.

Maple Creek Couple Married Half Century

When Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stewart of Maple Creek, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, set out from New London to their new home a half century ago, oxen pulled the wagon containing their household goods. A hundred friends, neighbors and relatives helped them celebrate the anniversary Sunday.

More than 100 relatives, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stewart gathered at their home at Maple Creek Sunday to assist in celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. The couple had been married 50 years on April 21 and that date also was observed as the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, Antigo, son and daughter-in-law of the Maple Creek pioneers.

Mr. and Mrs. W .H. Stewart were married at New London by Elder William Sewart, father of the groom, in 1878 and a few days later set out in a wagon drawn by oxen for their new home at Maple Creek. She formerly was Lucy Knowles of Green Bush, Sheboygan-co.

The anniversary Sunday was featured by the announcement of the coming wedding of Miss Margaret Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, to Con Brooks, of Watertown. Other children are Mrs James L. Besau, Readley, Calif, and John Stewart, Maple Creek, who now operates the homestead.

The house was suitably decorated for the occasion and a monstrous wedding cake, especially made for the occasion, was cut during the afternoon.

Those from away who attended the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. J. Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. John Knowles, Mrs. Grace Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Lindberg and family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zienke and Mr. and Mrs. John Clark of Green Bush.

Miss Margaret Stewart of Watertown; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Mina, Mr. and Mrs. V. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sleeter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart and son, Donald; James Minor, Jr , of Antigo; Mrs. Fanny Pierce and E. Everidge, of Wild Rose; Mr. and Mrs. John Mansfield and Harry Mansfield, Deer Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Gustave A Field, Mr. and Mrs. William Gough, Mrs. Helen Hill and Mrs. Lizzie Miracle, Maple Creek.

WALTER KAPHINGST HURT WHEN AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Walter Kaphingst, son Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaphingst, 743 W. fifth-st received severe cuts about the head and face about 2.30 Sunday afternoon when a car in which he and three companions were riding turned turtle on a newly graveled road about a half mile north of Mount Calvary.

The four boys were traveling toward Mount Calvary where they expected to visit friends, when the driver, unaware of the sharp curve ahead, lost control and the car turned over into a ditch.

Kaphingst was taken to Mount Calvary by a passing motorist and given medical attention. The top of the car was demolished but the boys were able to return to Appleton with it later in the afternoon.

TALK OVER PLANS FOR CONFERENCE OF BOYS

J. W. Pugh, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and Donald Gebhardt, assistant physical director, attended the meeting of the Older Boys' conference committee in Milwaukee Sunday afternoon.

Plans for the Older Boys' conference at Janesville from Nov. 30 to Dec 2, were discussed Coach Gebhardt discussed plans for Camp Manitowish with Walter Gebber of Milwaukee, one of his assistants at the camp.

A marriage license was issued Monday by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, to Miss Blanche Gerharz and Edward Langlois, Kaukauna.

GREEN BAY MEN FLY TO CONVENTION IN KANSAS

Five officers and district sales managers of the McIntyre-Burral company of Green Bay, Saddlery and radio wholesalers, left at 8 o'clock for Atchison, Kan., in the North American Airways company's monoplane the "Pride of Appleton," to attend a sales meeting of a radio manufacturing company there.

The air distance from here to Atchison is about 500 miles and Pilot Eddie Merritt, before taking off, estimated that the trip would be made in a little more than four hours. They expected to have luncheon at Atchison. The party will make the return trip Tuesday afternoon.

GO TO ANTIGO

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner and Court Reporter William H. Kreiss went to Antigo Monday where the judge was to preside at a regular term of circuit court. They expect to remain in Antigo all week, returning to Appleton next Saturday.

19 TON STEAM SHOVEL BREAKS THROUGH BRIDGE

Traffic over the draw bridge across the Fox river canal on N. Oneida-st was tied up for about an hour Monday noon when one wheel of a huge trailer, carrying a 19-ton steam shovel, crashed through the bridge. A hole about six feet long and a foot and a half wide was made in the floor of the bridge by the wheel

After an inspection of the bridge, street cars and busses were allowed to cross, but automobile traffic was being held up.

The steam shovel, which is owned by John S. Balliet, was being moved from a job on the "flats" to Oshkosh. Mr. Balliet said he decided to move the shovel across the draw bridge because he believed the longer bridge across the river proper was not safe.

The front end of the trailer had already reached the north end of the bridge when one of the rear wheels crashed through the weak spot. The huge machine was moved off the trailer and then the trailer was taken from the bridge.

MONDAY MORNING WAS WARMEST OF THE YEAR

Fair weather will continue for another 24 hours, according to the prediction for Monday night and Tuesday.

Fair and colder weather prevails throughout the upper and lower lake regions and the western states. Strong west to northwest winds will continue to blow.

The mercury registered 46 degrees above early Monday morning, which was the warmest morning this year. At noon the thermometer registered 57 degrees above.

ALDERMEN WILL AID IN SELECTING SCHOOL SITES

Aldermen Mark Catlin of the First Ward, John Dederrich of the Second Ward, and Walter Gmeiner of the Third Ward will be appointed to the city council committee to work with members of the school board in selecting a site for a proposed senior high school, Mayor A. C. Rule indicated Monday morning. The mayor is the fourth member of the committee according to a resolution passed by the council a week ago.

The committee has been appointed at the request of members of the board of education who were elected to a committee to arrange for purchasing a site for the proposed school.

GYMNASIUM CLASSES ON SUMMER SCHEDULE

The summer schedule for business men's gymnasium classes at Y. M. C. A. begin today, according to A. P. Jensen, physical director. Instead of having groups meeting daily at 5:15 in the afternoon, the groups will be combined to meet on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week, at 5:15.

LOCAL CONCERN BIDS ON CONSTRUCTION JOB

The Wilson Construction company of Appleton will submit their bid on the new concrete section of highway 68 in Washington-co between Port Washington and Horicon, at the letting of contracts Tuesday, at the Milwaukee division number two office of the state highway department. The new section of the road is to be five miles long and 20 feet wide.

TALK ABOUT AIRPORT

Karl M. Haugen, president and manager of the North American Airways company, went to Green Bay Monday to confer with businessmen there regarding the establishing of an airport. Green Bay is the only city on the company's proposed line from Menominee, Mich., to Milwaukee that has not selected a site for a landing field.

CITY'S BUSINESS NOT HURT BY FACT THAT IT IS STATE CAPITAL

Chamber of Commerce Bulletin Says Law Making Even Helps Prosperity

Forty-eight capital cities need have no fear that their chances of industrial progress will be dimmed by the fact that they are legislative centers. There is nothing hostile, the Civic Development Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States finds, between the making of laws and the making of steel products or butter tubs.

This matter, which has been receiving considerable attention throughout the United States, is explained in a bulletin received by Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, and has been quite freely discussed at chamber meetings.

In response to an inquiry, the Department concluded after investigation that the fact that a city is the capital of a state has a tendency to increase its importancem as a shipping center and has no bearing upon its industrial advancement.

"In eleven of the 48 states," it points out, "the capital is the largest city in the state. These vary in size from Boise, Idaho, with a population of 23,042, to Boston, with a population of 781,529. State capitals of the remaining 37 states vary in population from 1,685 for Carson City, Nev., to 279,833 for Columbus, Ohio.

"The eleven capitals which are the largest cities in their respective states spent the greatest amount for wages. Eighteen capital cities spent more wages per inhabitant than any other city in their state.

"Twenty one of the capital cities have more municipalities within their shopping area than any city in their respective states."

HIGHWAY BONDS DRAW $81,600 IN INTEREST

County Clerk Figures That Action of Supervisors Will Be a Costly One

Interest on the $175,000 highway bond issue, passed by county supervisors at their April session last week, will total $81,600 in the ten years before the bonds are due and retired, it is revealed in an estimate made by John E. Hantschel, county clerk.

The bond issue provides funds for a permanent surface for County Trunk Z from Appleton to Kaukauna on the south side of the river, and for 17 other improvements in towns and cities in the county.

According to the terms of resolution, $60,000 of the bonds are to come due on Jan. 1, 1928, $60,000 on Jan. 1, 1939; and the balance, $55,000, on Jan. 1, 1940. The resolutions provide the county board can order a tax on all assessable property to pay for the interest on the bonds and to retire them when they are due. The bonds are to bear interest at 4½ percent.

In 1929 the interest will total $11,156.25; in 1930, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, and 37 the interest will total $7,437.50 each year, in 1938, after the first $60,000 is paid off, the interest will be $6,162.50 in 1939, after the second $60,000 is paid off, the interest will be $3,612.50 the final interest payment in 1940 will be $1,168.75.

COST CITY $2,027 TO REMOVE SNOW IN MARCH

Snow and ice removed from streets, crossings and alleys during March cost the city $2,027.37, according to the itemized report of R. F. Hackworthy, streets commissioner. Among other items of expenditure were $697.43 for thawing out catch basins and inlets, $106.05 for cleaning snow from private walks, $283.96 for opening streets and $50.65 for taking down snow fences.

The expense involved in putting some of the city streets in condition is indicated by the report which shows that it cost $684.40 to repair and place cinders and screenings on N. Mason-st, $126.35 for cinders on Seymour-st, $96.80 fo N. Meade-st and $205.61 for general street grading.
